Parley Votes Unanimously To Continue Deliberations

Roosevelt Wins Point as Compromise Is Accepted.

Monetary Problem Will Be Deferred

Gold Bloc Falls in Line When Britain Casts Lot With U. S.

London, July 6 (U.P.).—President Roosevelt scored a smashing victory today when the steering committee voted unanimously that the World Economic Conference, beset by bitter differences over currency stabilization, should continue.

The President's leadership, supported by Canada and assisted by the mediation of Great Britain in the drive to keep the conference alive, was borne out by developments during a dramatic day, in which few had expected anything but adjournment.

The United States group, however, led a dogged fight against quitting in failure. The result of the President's appeal was that not a delegate among the sixteen countries represented on the steering committee arose to advocate adjournment.

Gold Bloc Surrenders.

The European gold bloc, led by France, had fought for immediate adjournment earlier in the week, but in the face of the adamant Roosevelt attitude and British support of the American program, they fell in line on a compromise on stabilization matters, and voted to carry on.

The conference is to proceed on two lines:

1. All subcommittees are to meet as rapidly as possible and draw up a list of subjects on which the nations are ready definitely to proceed.

2. These are to be submitted to the steering committee, which will decide what the future course of the parley shall be.

This compromise postponed discussion of monetary problems for the present. The gesture saved the gold bloc nations—France, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland and Holland—from the necessity of a backdown on their currency stabilization policy or of withdrawal from the conference, and permitted the parley to continue.

MacDonald Takes Lead.

Despite the ostensible refusal of the gold bloc to participate in monetary deliberations unless stabilization were studied immediately, it was generally believed their delegates would be drawn irresistibly into financial talks which undoubtedly will occur within the orbit of the economic discussions.

It was noteworthy that the French receded from their earlier insistence that tariffs and import quotas should be excluded from the deliberations if stabilization is put to one side.

The actual vote of the steering committee in deciding to continue the parley came on a resolution submitted by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald. The committee met at 6:10 p. m., adopted the resolution in 10 minutes, and adjourned.

Lindberghs Ready For Hop at Noon

New York, July 6 (U.P.).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh may take off at noon tomorrow on the first lap of their flight to Greenland, it was indicated tonight at the aircraft plant where the monoplane to be used by the famous couple is being conditioned.

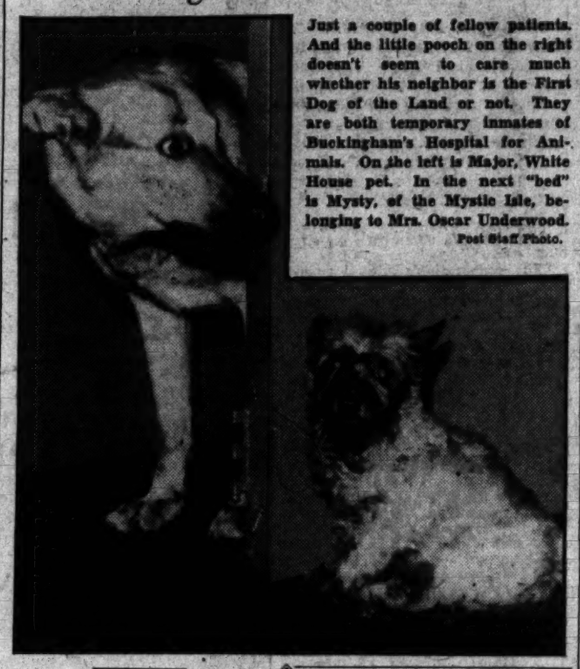
Both Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were at the plant at College Point, Queens, today. Mrs. Lindbergh spent several hours in the rear cockpit looking over newly installed radio equipment.

Harold Gatty, who flew around the world with Wiley Post, installed a ground speed meter in the plane. Work on this installation was started in order that the Lindbergh plane would be ready for flight tomorrow.

Jury Will Pass Upon Sanity of Harriman

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey announced today that he would impanel a jury tomorrow to pass upon the mental and physical fitness of Joseph W. Harriman, former head of the Harriman National Bank & Trust Co., who is to go on trial on charges of making false entries in the books of the bank.

First Dog of Land and Friend



Just a couple of fellow patients. And the little pooch on the right doesn't seem to care much whether his neighbor is the First Dog of the Land or not. They are both temporary inmates of Buckingham's Hospital for Animals. On the left is Major, White House pet. In the next "bed" is Mysty, of the Mystic Isle, belonging to Mrs. Oscar Underwood. Post Staff Photo.

Roosevelt Dog, Victim of Cysts, Operated Upon

Major, the presidential police dog, has been vindicated. It wasn't his fault after all.

Living a life of disgrace since he bit Senator Hattie Caraway at Mrs. Roosevelt's party for Secretary Frances Perkins, Major has been the object of a lot of dirty looks and even a couple of nasty newspaper stories. But now it's out. Veterinarians say he was suffering from three bad cysts that caused him enough pain to bite a couple of senators and maybe an ambassador.

On the morning of the Fourth, the First Lady discovered Major's ailment. She called Dr. Mason Weadon, of Buckingham's Hospital for Animals. He went to the White House and removed the big police dog to an operating room.

Major was a perfect patient. Today he is well on the way to recovery. The veterinarians don't hesitate to say that the cysts caused Major enough discomfort to keep him in an ugly mood for several months. And the suffering has been going on for that long, simply because a cyst is not apparent until it's about time to operate.

Now Major is a model of deportment. Besides his other distinctions, he has had a call from Mrs. Roosevelt, and about every three hours a White House attache inquires about his health. He's resting in a dog ward at Dr. Buckingham's establishment.

Major is not the only distinguished patient. In the cage next door is Mysty of the Mystic Isle, a cairn belonging to Mrs. Oscar Underwood, wife of the late senator from Alabama. They get along as good party dogs should.

Major will go back to the White House in about a week.

Father Is Accused Of Kidnaping Sons

Philadelphia, July 6 (U.P.).—A kidnaping scare that began when two small boys were snatched from the porch of a summer cottage at Parkland near here, at noon today, ended tonight with a warrant for the arrest of their father.

Mrs. Mildred Donus, mother of the boys, Joseph, 8, and John, 10, told police when she came home tonight that she was certain her estranged husband, Joseph, had done it. A pencil bearing his name was found on the porch. She swore out a warrant charging him with nonsupport.

Mrs. Donus was on a shopping trip and the boys, with several other children, were playing on the porch of the cottage. An automobile drove up, three men leaped out, grabbed the two Donus boys, and sped away.

Macon Makes Flight Over New York City

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—The Navy's new dirigible, Macon, crossed over Mahattan's spires for the first time at 10 p. m. (Eastern standard time) tonight and headed down the length of Long Island on an all-night training cruise.

The ship was sighted 15 minutes later over the northern shore of Long Island. Headed seaward, it was traveling approximately 70 miles an hour at an estimated elevation of 1,200 feet.

Edson Is Slated To Lose Office In Civil Service

Babcock, Also to Go, Will Be Made Manager of San Francisco Area.

H. A. Edson, chief examiner of the Civil Service Commission, and E. Claude Babcock, secretary, are slated to be relieved of their posts with the commission.

Dr. Edson and Mr. Babcock, both Presidential appointees, have "expressed a willingness not to stand in the way of reorganization," it was said at the commission. Mr. Babcock will leave Washington the last of the week to become district manager of the commission's San Francisco office.

It was learned on good authority that the offices of secretary and chief examiner will be consolidated. It is not yet known who will succeed to the post.

The prospective changes came as a surprise. Ever since establishment of the Civil Service Commission, both important offices had come to be regarded as fixtures, not subject to change with administrations.

Dr. Edson has been in the Government service for 23 years, and has been chief examiner for the commission since 1927, when he left the post of chief plant pathologist in the Department of Agriculture to take the job.

Mr. Babcock, a disabled veteran of the World War, had been secretary to the commission about a year, succeeding John T. Doyle, retired. He entered the employ of the commission in June, 1923, as clerk, and had since held office as junior examiner, assistant examiner, associate examiner, head of the legal section, examining division; legal adviser and assistant secretary.

He was a member of the National Federation of Federal Employes and the American Federation of Government Employes, holding, with the consent of the Civil Service Commission, the office of secretary in the latter organization.

A member of the District Bar, he was a graduate of Central High School of this city, and attended the University of Virginia, George Washington University and the universities of Aix-Marseilles and Lyon, in France. He served with the Rainbow Division in France in five major engagements, and was badly wounded.

Consolidation of the offices of secretary and chief examiner is said to be considered as the result of a study by the Brookings Institution into internal operations of the commission.

Royal Pair Marks Fortieth Anniversary

London, July 6 (A.P.).—King George and Queen Mary today spent their fortieth wedding anniversary quietly at Buckingham Palace, after a simple lunch on the royal train, returning from a visit to Chatsworth.

Congratulations from all parts of the world, in cables and telegrams, awaited their arrival in London, but there was no special celebration to mark the event, except that the royal servants drank to the health of the king and queen in champagne.

Airplane Loses Wings; Stunting Pilot Is Killed

South Bend, Ind., July 6 (A.P.).—Marvin W. Rector, 25, of Kalamazoo, Mich., was killed today when a monoplane he was stunting lost its wings in a loop at 1,000 feet and crashed a few miles west of here.

Banker Talks Self Free of 2 Kidnapers

John K. Ottley, Atlanta Sportsman, Was Held for $40,000.

Gained Liberty From Boy Guarding Him for Less Than $10.

Atlanta, July 6 (A.P.).—John King Ottley, 65-year-old financier and sportsman, was kidnaped in downtown Atlanta today, then outtalked one of his abductors and escaped a few hours later near Suwanee, 30 miles north of here. The kidnapers demanded $40,000, but got less than $10.

One of the abductors—a 17-year-old boy, who was left to guard Mr. Ottley while his companion delivered a note to the Ottley home in Atlanta, was arrested and led a posse to a retreat where authorities laid a trap for the other abductor, an older man.

The couple kidnaped Mr. Ottley, president of the First National Bank here and a horseman of national repute, as he was en route to his office. They commandeered his automobile and drove him to a wooded section near Suwanee. There he was forced to write a note to his wife, telling her he had been kidnaped. The kidnapers demanded $40,000 for his release.

Banker's Story of Episode.

The older abductor returned to Atlanta to deliver the note and the boy was left alone with Mr. Ottley. The banker said the boy apparently "didn't know what it was all about," and he succeeded in talking himself free of the boy.

The boy accompanied Mr. Ottley to a store in Suwanee, from where the financier telephoned his home and office. Authorities were called and took the boy in custody. He denied any motive and agreed to lead the posse to a retreat where he believed the older man would return.

"After I had written the note," Mr. Ottley said, "one of the men was left with me and the other went off somewhere. I got away and made my way to Suwanee, where I got in touch with my home and office. The man got less than $10 which I had on my person, and that is all they got. I am safe and unharmed and only hope the incident has not caused grave alarm among my friends and loved ones."

No Threats Received.

The banker said he had not received any threatening letters prior to today's sudden drama, and that the whole affair was a surprise to him.

Mr. Ottley is known throughout the Nation as a banker and sportsman. The bank, of which he is president, is the largest in the Southeast.

In 1931, Mr. Ottley was asked by President Hoover to serve as a director of the National Credit Corporation, and the same year the President appointed him as a member of a national advisory commission of unemployment.

Yacht Skipper, 19, Wins Atlantic Race

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—The two-masted yacht, Ahto, skippered by 19-year-old Ahto Walther, of Esthonia, sailed into the New York Harbor today, winner of the 4,000-mile race from Gambria, West Africa, in competition with the British cutter Enterprise, with Peter Barber at the helm.

The Enterprise was believed not far behind, as it was reported sighted off Barnegat Light yesterday morning after the Ahto had been driven to shelter at Atlantic City Monday evening by the heavy storm.

Mattern Rescue Flight Again Halted by Rain

Terrace, B. C., July 6 (A.P.).—Rain and low-hanging clouds again combined today to keep the Jimmy Mattern rescue expedition on the ground in the wheat field west of here, where it stopped yesterday, en route from Edmonton, Alberta, to Fairbanks, Alaska.

William Alexander, pilot of the large monoplane used by the expedition, and his three companions, said they would wait for clearing weather before starting off on the remainder of the flight, over rough, mountainous country, to the Alaska city.

Rebellion and Incendiarism Imminent as Heavy Guard Keeps Vigil Around Lorton

Superintendent Resigns Under Accusation of Starting Trouble.

D. C. Police, Firemen at Occoquan Poised to Quell Outbreak.

A human volcano of 1,157 criminals behind the unlocked doors of Lorton Reformatory is threatening to erupt into a seething mass of incendiarists while guards and District police await the outbreak with gas and machine guns.

The rebellion is expected when the criminals get news of the resignation of Supt. A. C. Tawse, who is accused by Capt. M. M. Barnard of fomenting the mutinous acts of the prisoners which have disturbed the tranquillity of the institution for the past four days.

That news is expected to reach the prisoners this morning. Fearful of an earlier outbreak, heavy details of guards and District policemen and firemen, sent as reinforcements, await the outbreak. They are quartered near the Occoquan Workhouse, poised to quell any rebellion.

Superintendent Resigns.

An outright charge of disloyalty was hurled at Tawse by Capt. Barnard when the superintendent of Lorton resigned late yesterday in the face of the most serious crisis that has confronted the general superintendent of penal institutions in more than 30 years of prison work.

After Capt. Barnard had pacified the men Monday morning after a disturbing week-end, all the men in the assembly hall raised their hands in a vote of confidence when he promised to remedy any legitimate complaints they made.

"Then Tawse got up," Capt. Barnard said, "and shouted to the men:

"'You men know what the trouble is here. The food is not good. It is not fit to eat. I told Mr. Barnard this morning that if the steward was not fired I would quit.'"

Prisoners Hoot and Cheer.

The mob turned itself into a hooting and cheering bedlam, Capt. Barnard said. "It was the most disloyal thing I ever saw in my life."

Rumors that Tawse would resign brought open threats from the prisoners that they would set fire to the place if he did.

The prospect of rebellion in the ranks induced Capt. Barnard to ask Tawse to withhold his resignation. "Let's fight it out," Barnard said he told Tawse. "Having in mind any possible disturbance, you wouldn't throw a monkey wrench into the machinery now that we are getting things ironed out, would you?"

"But Tawse said, 'That is now out of my hands,' and he walked out."

Favoritism Is Alleged.

Tawse complained in his resignation that he had not been given a free hand. On the other hand, Barnard accused Tawes of violating rules of the prison by taking prisoners to visit relatives in Washington, and ingratiating himself with the prisoners.

"He wanted to get the men thinking that if he went away from here they would not get the consideration that he gave them."

Even before the friction with Tawse had reached the crucial stage,

Crops Near Brownsville Damaged; Mexican City in Path of Storm.

Brownsville, Tex., July 6 (A.P.).—A tropical storm which swept from the Gulf of Mexico toward the mouth of the Rio Grande apparently turned south tonight and moved over a sparsely settled section of Mexico between Brownsville and Tampico, in the State of Tamaulipas.

W. J. Schnurbursh, chief observer for the Weather Bureau here, expressed the opinion the storm struck land approximately 35 miles south of Brownsville.

He believed, with others, however, that the lower Rio Grande Valley, although not in the direct path of the disturbance, might receive heavy rains and high water, especially if the storm carried heavy precipitation to the mountains in the direction of Monterrey, Mexico. Cotton and early citrus fruit crops were damaged by rain and wind which preceded the storm proper.

The barometer here rose steadily toward normal tonight and the wind dropped from a maximum of approximately 35 miles an hour to 22.

Between Brownsville and Tampico, approximately 200 miles apart on a north and south line, there are few communities of consequence. If the theory of Mr. Schnurbusch proved correct, however, Monterey, in the State of Nuevo Leon, far inland, and approximately 125 miles west and south of Brownsville, would be in the path of the storm.

A Humble Oil Co. tanker with 5,000 gallons of gasoline turned over at Port Isabel, in Laguna Madre, today in the heavily pounding seas ahead of the Gulf hurricane approaching here.

A portion of the toll bridge between the mainland and Brazos Island was under water at 12:30 p. m.

Amelia Earhart Poised for Flight

Los Angeles, July 6 (A.P.).—Delayed a day by unfavorable weather, Amelia Earhart Putnam, holder of the women's aerial speed record of 19 hours 4 minutes from Los Angeles to New York, said tonight she hoped to get away on a cross-country speed dash between midnight and 1 a. m., (Pacific standard time) tomorrow.

The flier's present mark was made on a nonstop flight August 25-26, 1932, but her plans this time call for a refueling stop at Wichita, Kans. Thunderstorms in Arizona prevented a take-off today.

Ruth Nichols, New York flier, who had considered making a similar flight from the scene of the National Air Races, abandoned her plans today after motor trouble developed during test hops. She said she would return East shortly by an air line.

All Safe After Ship Grounds Off Morocco

Casablanca, Morocco, July 6 (A.P.).—The steamship Nicolas Paquet, 8,500 tons, ran aground on rocks 4 miles off Cape Spartel in a fog today, and all holds filled with water reaching to the decks.

Officials Snap Whip as Result Of Late Codes

Cummings Issues Threat to Enforce Antitrust Laws.

By J. Bernard McDonnell.

The administration began waving the big stick of its punitive authority yesterday in an effort to speed acceptance of its recovery plans by the Nation's industrial and business leaders.

"It is of the utmost importance in the existing national emergency that industry should take advantage of the provisions of the national recovery act," Attorney General Homer S. Cummings said.

He coupled with that statement a warning that the antitrust laws had not been wiped off the books and would be sharply enforced against those who stayed out from "under the wing" of the recovery law. He struck, too, at actual and threatened increases in prices of various commodities, saying the Department of Justice would investigate and prosecute where it found justifying evidence.

The other wave of the big stick was contained in an address delivered before the Merchants Association in New York City by Donald R. Richberg, chief counsel of the National Recovery Administration. Delivered with the approval of Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, Mr. Richberg's speech bristled with warning that private industry must not continue to "waste these precious hours" by refusing to fall in with the Government's recovery program. If it did, Mr. Richberg said, its present chance would be gone forever and advance of political control over private industry would be inevitable.

"Information has reached the Department of Justice," the Attorney General said in his statement, "that, in certain instances of violation of existing law, sundry groups already are making and attempting to carry into effect improper restrictive agreements.

"The purpose of this statement

Workers' Units Urge Executive Action on Jobs

Rehiring Assurance Asked by 2 Federal Employe Groups' Spokesmen.

By Robert C. Albright.

Decisive action on the part of the President, to assure reemployment of Federal jobless and maintain the integrity of the merit system, last night was called for by spokesmen of the organized Government workers.

As the Cabinet prepared to hold its first full meeting since the return of the President, the National Federation of Federal Employes requested a "clear-cut" statement from Mr. Roosevelt, while the American Federation of Government Employes perfected plans for a mass meeting tomorrow of ousted workers.

Current reports to the contrary, President Roosevelt has at no time promised he will call on heads of the new Federal emergency agencies to rehire employes forced out of old-line establishments by retrenchment measures.

He has a Cabinet committee at work on reemployment possibilities, but Secretary of Commerce Roper is authority for the statement it has held no meeting. The President will have an opportunity to take the matter up with his entire Cabinet when it meets at 2 p. m. today.

Meanwhile, the July issue of the Federal Employe, official magazine of the National Federation of Federal Employes, today will display an editorial headed: "The President Should Act Decisively."

The editorial quotes from a speech of Mr. Roosevelt delivered before the Harvard Union, when he was Assistant Secretary of the Navy in 1920.

"I think that everybody who has studied the question is in favor of the Civil Service," Mr. Roosevelt said at that time. "At least the

Cashier Thwarts Five Bank Bandits

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—A young cashier thwarted an attempt by five bandits to rob the Prudential Realty Currency Exchange Bank today by flooding the place with tear gas and then boldly chasing the robbers with his revolver.

Five customers and a dozen employes were endangered by the flying bullets as the cashier, Melvin Thillens, and the gunmen exchanged shots.

Thillens was alone in the cage when two of the robbers with sawed-off shotguns appeared at his window. Two more stood guard at the door, and a fifth outside. Thillens dropped to the floor, pressed a button that released tear gas, ran around the cage and fired at the robbers. They fled, firing as they went. A splinter of glass injured Thillens slightly.

By Harold J. T. Horan.

President Roosevelt's European ambassador at large, Norman H. Davis, will be a stay-at-home for the next six weeks, or perhaps longer, until the prospects for action at the disarmament conference improve, it was announced here yesterday. Mr. Davis, who had planned to leave for London, Geneva and other continental points, yesterday suddenly canceled his passage and came to Washington instead. He called on Acting Secretary of State William Phillips and after leaving the State Department had tea with the President at the White House. Ambassador Davis deprecated reports that he will not return to Europe at all. He drawled:

"Oh, I'm like an old rabbit dog. Whenever there's something doing on disarmament, I'll probably be around. I may go back in a week and then, again, I may stay over here longer."

The Disarmament Committee itself is now in the doldrums. President Arthur Henderson is actively working on various details of the conference, but in the face of the recess of the various committees planned for August, there exists little possibility there will be any immediate need for Ambassador Davis' presence there before the end of that month.

The implications in Ambassador Davis' changed plans are regarded here as particularly significant in view of the trend toward national self-sufficiency that President Roosevelt's new international program has been taking. It now begins to look as though disarmament will have to join the other problems like war debts and currency stabilization that will have to wait on the end of the London conference.

The work of the various committees at Geneva has been directed toward reconciliation of the disarmament plans of former President Hoover, of Prime Minister MacDonald and finally of Premier Mussolini of Italy. Several problems may come up in the next few weeks that will require the presence in Geneva of an American diplomatist with more plenipotentiary powers than are possessed by the present American representative at Geneva, Minister Hugh Wilson.

The State Department last night issued this statement on Mr. Davis' decision not to return at once to Geneva:

"Mr. Hugh R. Wilson, American minister to Switzerland and delegate to the Disarmament Conference, has reported that the work on disarmament probably will not require Mr. Norman Davis' presence in Europe for the next few weeks. Therefore, Mr. Norman Davis will not sail as he had planned, but he will hold himself available to return at any time when it appears his presence in connection with disarmament work is necessary."

Executive Action On Rehiring Asked

Civil Service started by President Cleveland has taken away the old system of party spoils. Every Government position is allotted after a Civil Service examination, and on the whole it works excellently."

The then Assistant Secretary of the Navy emphasized the need for progressive steps which would open the way to greater opportunities for Federal employes.

Imperative Need Cited.

"If there was need for Assistant Secretary Roosevelt to make such an address in 1920, it is imperative that President Roosevelt do so at this time," the employes' organ will say today.

"Much more is at stake than the positions of men and women who have earned them on the basis of merit and kept them through training and proved efficiency.

"The issue, broadly, concerns the maintenance of a just American principle."

At the same time, the labor-affiliated American Federation of Government Employes was pushing formation of the Civil Service Reinstatement League to take steps to find Government jobs for Federal employes already ousted. A meeting of all desiring reemployment was called for 3 p. m. tomorrow in the A. F. of L. Building.

Cummings Favors Rehiring.

Another member of the President's Cabinet yesterday went on record in favor of rehiring trained Government personnel wherever possible. Attorney General Hugh Cummings told newspapermen he thought it "highly important" that agencies in need of new help employ these competent workers. At the same time he admitted his department will have to make some additional dismissals July 15 and thereafter.

The movement to rehire employes dismissed from old line agencies is gaining substantial ground in only two of the new emergency set-ups—the Agriculture Adjustment Administration and the Tennessee Valley Authority.

State Administrators, of the public works program, are understood to have received instructions ordering them to appoint minor officials from eligibility lists in possession of the Civil Service Commission's district managers. Civil Service certificates would be required for stenographers, typists and clerks, although the first four assistants to the administrators could be personal selections.

The Tennessee Valley Authority announced it had taken over more than 400 Government employes in connection with the transfer of War Department work in the Tennessee Valley basin.

Richberg Gives Trade 60 Days To Meet Test

Political Control of Industry Forecast If Opportunity Is Fumbled.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—A 60-day period was set today by the counsel for the Industrial Recovery Administration as a test of whether American business will rise to the direction of private industry.

"If the industrial control plan should fail," Donald R. Richberg told the New York Merchants Association, "it will not be a failure of government; it will be the failure of an industrial system.

"It will mean either that the system is fundamentally unsound or that the present managers of private industry are incapable of operating it successfully.

"If the program is not rolling forward within the next 60 days because of the holding back of either group (business or labor), they will be indicted for incompetence by the suffering millions who are now giving to industrial leadership one more chance—perhaps the last—to justify its existence."

Officials Warn Tardy Industries

is to make clear that such procedure is not lawful and will not be tolerated.

"A brief statement of the situation may be made as follows: Industrial and other groups must abide by the terms and conditions of the antitrust laws, unless and until they obtain actual exemption from certain of the requirements thereof by formulating a code under the national recovery act and obtaining its approval by the President."

His declaration applied equally to the farm relief law, he said, and added that even under approved codes there would be certain activities and agreements prohibited by the antitrust laws. Price fixing in the steel rails and aluminum industries, virtual monopolies, was being investigated, Mr. Cummings said.

Conferences already have been held with recovery and farm relief officials, Mr. Cummings said, and there will be close cooperation between his department and the recovery agencies.

The formal warnings to industry to hurry into line came as President Roosevelt was taking an increasing personal hand in the situation, which officials privately fear but publicly deny.

The President conferred twice with Recovery Administrator Johnson and also called in Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and George N. Peek, farm relief administrator, who have criticized increases in food prices and are confronted with a disposition of farmers to stay outside of the farm relief program. The rise in agricultural prices is proving a strong magnet for the individual farmer to go along on his own. This is said to be particularly true of the cotton industry.

Attorney General Cummings, Secretary Wallace, Mr. Peek and Gen. Johnson have conferred on the question of what commodities are to be considered as belonging within the jurisdiction of the industrial and what under that of the farm relief agencies. The Attorney General believes that foods belong properly under the farm agency, but the matter has been left up to the two agencies for settlement. There is a difference between the two laws and it probably will be left for determination in individual cases.

Lewis Douglas, director of the budget, stepped into the public works picture with a proposal to President Roosevelt to curtail all but the soundest and most necessary or beneficial of the proposed public works projects. Mr. Douglas pointed to rising prices and the heavy cost of the entire recovery program and the large deficit confronting the Federal Treasury. He also suggested that the President should refuse to advance funds to States which have not balanced their budgets.

Secretary of War George H. Dern said there would be no reduction in the works program because of the price argument of Mr. Douglas. The public works cabinet board met yesterday, but didn't do very much, apparently. The subcommittee appointed to study a $400,000,000 program was supposed to report yesterday. Next Tuesday was fixed for its report.

Robert D. Kohn, formerly president of the American Institute of Architects, was appointed by the works board to subsistence homestead and housing projects authorized by the law.

Each time a tentacle is severed from an octopus a new one is said to grow out to take its place.

With the administration's stimulus, Congress has added many tentacles to the function of Government, each of these tentacles to prime in some way the pump of business.

One of these new arms of the Government will promote "thrift and home building" through the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. And to carry out the work, the board has chosen Frank A. Chase, of Miami, Fla., as its director of field service.

Mr. Chase's mission is to carry the gospel of the building and loan association to localities where it has not flourished.

The board is authorized to cooperate in the founding of Federal savings and loan associations. Mr. Chase will promote the establishment of these associations, the board subscribing half the capital, up to $100,000, in an individual association.

In Mr. Chase the board has chosen a man who has devoted 35 years of his life to building and loan association work. He was the founder of the American Savings, Building and Loan Institute and its first educational director. During his career he has established virtually thousands of such institutions and is known from coast to coast in that connection.

Mr. Chase sees in the board's work an opportunity "to reverse the community ills of families losing homes, delinquent taxes, values declining and keeping in hiding."

Home building, which Mr. Chase says starts an almost endless chain of spending and hiring, will be induced in communities where the associations are founded because of the availability of long term loans at reasonable rates.

Movies of the Soroptimists Guests to Be Exhibited Throughout Country.

Moving pictures taken by the Greater National Capital Committee will enable members of Soroptimists clubs throughout the United States to follow Brita Ohberg, of New York, and Mary Ring, of Baltimore, as they saw the sights of the National Capital yesterday as guests of the Washington Soroptimists Club. The completed reel showing will be sent to each of the 41 clubs in the country.

The American Federation of Soroptimists Clubs plans to bring a group of young people to Washington each year. Miss Ohberg and Miss Ring were selected as the first to make the trip.

Miss Ohberg, a native of Sweden, was graduated from Washington Irving High School, in New York, last spring with a perfect record in attendance. Miss Ring is a graduate of the Halethorpe School, in Baltimore, and is president of the Young Peoples' World Citizens' League. The girls will be guests of the Soroptimists until Sunday.

Taplin Reveals 'Poker Game' in Railways' War

Senate Probers Hear How $11,000,000 in Profits Came to Family.

(Associated Press.)

Competition between the great Eastern trunk line railroads in buying up strategic competing lines in the prosperous days of early 1929, was likened to a "poker game" before the Senate Banking Committee yesterday by Frank E. Taplin, a Cleveland capitalist, whose family reaped more than $11,000,000 profit from one of the sales.

Late in the day, Taplin told the committee, he set up trust accounts for his children to lessen his income tax. The statement was made after Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, said his investigation showed Taplin, as trustee for his son, lowered his income tax for 1929 by $374,921. In that year he filed his return as an investor, although in 1926 a deduction had been claimed as a dealer in securities.

Appearing at the last session of the committee, before its adjournment until October, Taplin readily told how he sold under an "oral" agreement 222,930 shares of stock in the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railroad to the Pennroad Corporation, the Pennsylvania Railroad holding company, in 1929, at a price far in excess of the market, after negotiating with other trunk lines.

The Pennroad Corporation, he said, also loaned him $1,950,000 the same year with the understanding he would keep control of the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad away from the Van Sweringen interests.

Taplin, who is president of the Pittsburgh & West Virginia, said 109,000 shares of that road's stock, or about half of the total sold to Pennroad, was obtained through a syndicate first organized by him in June, 1923, at an average price of $32.50 a share. The total of 222,930 was sold to Pennroad at $170 a share when the market was around $140 or lower.

Pecora figured the profit to the syndicate was around $12,807,500 and since the Taplin family and the North American Coal Corporation, controlled by the witness, owned 97,953 shares of the syndicate's 109,000, they got "nine-tenths" of the profit.

Taplin testified the remainder of the shares sold to the Pennroad were obtained through individual agreements with stockholders who were allowed, he said, "to tie up" with him on the profits on promise they would not dispose of their stock until the Taplin sale negotiations were completed.

Steinhardt Sails To Study Soviets

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Questions involved in American recognition of Soviet Russia will be studied for the administration by Laurence A. Steinhardt, who sailed today to take over his post as Minister to Sweden.

"Stockholm is an advantageous point from which to observe Russia," said the 40-year-old envoy, a New York attorney.

"It is, you know, the diplomatic post nearest to Russia. I shall make observations from there and report back to the President from time to time."

The contemplated survey was viewed in some quarters here as further evidence that the Government may act in the near future on the recognition question.

Steinhardt, who conferred yesterday with President Roosevelt, may begin his inquiry in London, where he said he would stop for a few days Raymond Moley, Assistant Secretary of State, who is in London for the world economic conference, talked last week with Maxim Litvinoff, head of the Soviet delegation.

Steinhardt, who was accompanied by his wife and 7-year-old daughter, Dulcie Ann, said his visit in England had no connection with the economic conference.

"While there I undoubtedly will meet members of the American delegation," he said, "but not for the purpose of imparting information. I have no specific instructions to give any one from the President."

Postal Receipts Here Gain in June

Keeping pace with the rest of the principal cities in the United States, Washington has shown an 11.96 per cent increase in postal receipts during the month of June over those of June, 1932. A statement issued by the Postoffice Department yesterday showed the total postal receipts in Washington for June, 1933, at $444,158.42. This represents an increase over June, 1932, of $47,451.04, the total for that month having been $396,707.38.

The figures of 50 selected cities showed an aggregate increase in all the cities of $2,982,251, or 13.35 per cent. The total receipts for June, 1933, were $24,988,394, as compared with $22,006,142 for June a year ago.

The department pointed out that the increases were spread throughout every section of the country.

Texas Woman Gets Reward for 30 Years' Effort to Enforce Claim.

Austin, Tex., July 6 (A.P.).—Annie Cook could tell the authors of copy-book maxims something about the value of persistence. It took her 30 years to get the Texas Legislature to approve a claim, but she did it.

A one-woman lobby, she attended every session of the body during that period, and interviewed every one of the 181 lawmakers chosen every two years.

Regular sessions and special sessions, Miss Cook was always there. Finally she grew to be known as "Senator" Cook, in recognition of her faithful attendance.

Her claim against the State followed the inauguration by the University of Texas of a department of correspondence, which she asserted hurt the income of the correspondence school she had originated. She took the view that it was her idea, and the State should pay her something for it.

After 30 years the State will pay $100 a month for 24 months, beginning next September 1.

President Glad As Delegation Wins at Parely

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt gave an exhibition of his pleasure yesterday over the victory of the American delegation in continuing the London Economic Conference, but coupled with this a redoubled effort for the mobilization of the domestic recovery campaign.

As word was brought to him of the decision at London to go ahead, but with monetary and tariff matters off the agenda, the Chief Executive smiled broadly, but made no public comment. He was the recipient of congratulations at the White House.

"Their bluff was called," said Senator Wheeler, of Montana, after a conference with the President. He said he praised Mr. Roosevelt upon the strength of his stand against immediate monetary stabilization.

During much of the day the President depended upon newspaper reports on the developments at London, although he was said to have communicated earlier with Chairman Hull of the American delegation. Pending official word of the most recent activities Mr. Roosevelt decided to withhold comment.

So long as the conference is alive, the President was represented in high quarters as determined to achieve progress toward bettering economic conditions throughout the world.

Nevertheless he was engaged most busily yesterday in improving conditions at home and a series of White House conferences during the day were focused on the domestic situation.

Of principal interest was a lengthy conference on credit policies and Federal finance attended by Eugene Black, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and Dean Acheson, acting Secretary of the Treasury.

Mr. Roosevelt is commanding the drive to boost prices and wage levels to approximately the 1924-25 average.

Whether any new steps toward more inflation or for a curbing of the present inflation were decided upon at the White House conference was not revealed.

Gov. Black would say only that the policies had been discussed and that "perfect harmony" existed between the President and the Federal Reserve Board on past and contemplated future policies.

Allied Dye Co. And Exchange Tilt Is Settled

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—The New York Stock Exchange and the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation announced approval today by the exchange governing committee and the company's directors of an agreement over the alleged inadequacy of the Allied Chemical & Dye financial statements.

The agreement previously had been reached between Orlando F. Weber, corporation president, and the exchange's committee on stock list.

The corporation's annual reports under the agreement will show that the property account and marketable securities are carried at cost. The basis used in determining the value of inventories will be indicated, and the market value of investments in Government and stock and curb exchange securities will be shown.

Must State Reserves.

Any reserves provided to cover the difference between the value at which investments are carried on the balance sheets and the market value thereof will be stated.

The agreement provided for elaborating on the item of further surplus and for placing in the annual reports the number of shares of common and preferred stock of the corporation held in its treasury together with their cost value.

The corporation agreed not to change its existing policy in regard to depreciation and obsolescence without notice to the exchange and corporation stockholders. No substantial items of income or profit, it was announced, will be credited to the income or surplus account and then shown as a deduction when appropriated to a reserve account.

Stock Statement Soon.

The corporation will issue a statement to stockholders soon giving the number of shares of stock in its treasury on last June 30, with the value at which the stock is carried on its books.

The exchange's governing committee had voted on May 24 to strike the stock from the list in August unless the company complied in the meantime with a demand that it furnish more informative financial statements to stockholders and the exchange.

The following week a group of stockholders formed a committee to seek replacement of "at least a fourth" of the directors because of the controversy with the stock exchange. Mr. Weber then charged the committee "was attempting to inflict foreign domination upon the company and the American chemical industry." The charge was denied by Solvay & Cie, Belgian chemical combine.

PORTLAND CEMENT Has pulled America out of the mud!

THAT GIVE MEN WORK · · THAT GIVE YOU DRIVING SAFETY, CONVENIENCE COMFORT AND LOW DRIVING COST

The United States Government has sounded the call, by giving a direct grant to the States, of at least four hundred million dollars for highway improvement. This is part of a vast program of public works to spread national employment and to stimulate business.

This work will be done through your own State Highway Department. The Federal Government asks no return except that the money be expended wisely—that the improvements be permanent, substantially built and of a type that gives men work.

CONCRETE ROADS meet every specification. They are permanent. Maintenance cost is much less than that of any other type. They give you the greatest driving safety, convenience and comfort. They cost less to drive over—saving you gas, tires, repairs and depreciation. They will give work to men now on doles in your community. Money will flow across the counters of home stores.

Insist on CONCRETE for your roads—get the most and the best road for the money—and the maximum employment for labor!

Remember the roads of 1910? Narrow strips of dirt—ankle-deep dust—quagmires of mud—The cost of moving goods was terrific!

The engineers have built, with cement, a network of CONCRETE highways throughout the nation that is nearly one hundred thousand miles in length. Cement spanned great rivers and broad valleys with concrete. Cement made the modern motor vehicle practical; made motoring a part of our daily life.

Riots and Fire Are Feared by Lorton Guard

Capt. Barnard said, Tawse had men going through the dormitories getting the prisoners to vote on "Tawse or Barnard."

"Those who expressed favor toward me," Capt. Barnard said, "were placed in solitary confinement on the pretext of shielding them from the other prisoners because of their refusal to join in the food demonstrations."

The prisoners "turned in" for the night at 9 o'clock last night. Everything was outwardly peaceful. Less than a mile away in the Occoquan Workhouse are the District police and firemen ready for the call for help.

Hidden behind the reformatory buildings are 137 guards, well out of sight. Their eyes are fixed on the red walls on the hilltop, which are swathed in the beating rays of arc lights. Sentries are posted in strategic spots ready to give the alarm.

Over in Capt. Barnard's house a plan of strategy was being laid by Capt. Barnard, Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown, Inspectors L. I. H. Edwards, and B. A. Lamb, and George S. Wilson, director of the District Board of Public Welfare.

Flimsy Wooden Doors.

Behind the scenes a titanic battle of minds was being waged. Capt. Barnard was pitting his years of experience against the collective minds of the 1,157 robbers, murderers, thieves and felons of all descriptions. If those men wanted to stage a break, nothing could prevent them from battering down the flimsy doors of the dormitories.

True, they probably would run into a withering fire of machine gun bullets, tear and nauseating gas, and power-driven water; but some of them might get away.

The irony of the situation is that Capt. Barnard is threatened with engulfment by his own concept of penology, which is, that humanitarianism is more effective than brutality as a crime deterrent and as a penalty for trangression.

That is why there are no bars on the doors. In all his years, he says, he never has been cruel to a prisoner. He never has had such a crisis to reach as that which has kept him awake for days. To him, an outbreak means success or failure for humane penology, of which he is a stanch advocate.

As the crisis approached late yesterday, he decided on a show of force. He told Mr. Wilson of the pending disorders and, through Commissioner Luther H. Reichelderfer, the orders were issued to the District police and firemen to aid.

The heavily armed gas and riot squads were mobilized under Inspector Lamb and Lieut. Harvey Callahan. They are equipped with gas masks, repeating rifles, machine guns and gas bombs and gas cartridges.

As word reached the Capital of the pending outbreak, cars began assembling carrying hundreds of curious. They were not allowed to approach within a mile of the reservation.

Newspapers Withheld.

Capt. Barnard seemed tired as he sat with reporters on the spacious veranda of his white, wood home, a little more than a mile from the reformatory. He told the story of his difficulties.

He kept the afternoon papers from the inmates, which carried the story of the action taken by the Public Welfare Board to oust Tawse. Rumors of Tawse's pending resignation filtered through; but nothing definite was learned by the prisoners. They will get this morning's paper, however.

Then the guards and police will be ready for any demonstration. If there is any outbreak, it may mean the end of Capt. Barnard's humane treatment of the prisoners.

The minute that Tawse's resignation reached Capt. Barnard, he sent it to his superiors with the recommendation that it be accepted. Then came the threats of violence There were shouts of setting fire to the place then, Capt. Barnard said, "but some of the cooler heads prevailed and told them that they would be just burning the beds from under themselves."

The reason that Tawse had been fomenting trouble over the food, Capt. Barnard charged, is that he does not like the steward, E. C. Coffin. That is the reason, he believes, that the complaints were directed against the food on Saturday and Sunday. Coffin has been a steward for more than 20 years.

The elderly head of District prisons said Tawse was aspiring to his position. He was jealous of the fact that he was sometimes ignored in newspaper stories when my name was mentioned.

Infraction of prison rules also were committed by Tawse, according to Capt. Barnard, by permitting prisoners to carry money.

A move to oust Tawse from his position was started by the Board of Public Welfare before the disorders occurred at Lorton. He was ordered to appear for a physical examination on June 29, but has not yet made his appearance. The troubles began on July 1.

Tawse could not be reached last night at his home near the Reformatory. He left for Washington at 6:30 last night and had not returned at a late hour last night.

Letter of Resignation.

The copy of his letter to Capt. Barnard was received at newspaper offices last night.

It read:

"For more than two years I have urged you to make the necessary changes in personnel here to remedy the food situation which gave rise to the recent outbreak. The men had a legitimate kick and when the situation became tense, for which situation your neglect to follow my judgment was responsible, I think I was responsible for quieting the matter.

"However, in the reports in the press you claim entire credit for it and leave me under the false charge of incompetency.

"Under these circumstances I feel compelled to say that unless I am given full authority and control over the personnel in the management of the institution I will have to submit my resignation to take effect at once. Under no circumstances will I permit myself again to go through such an ordeal as the past few days, any my authority must be equal to my responsibility.

"Please let me know your conclusions."

U. S. Seeking 8 For Slaughter At Kansas City

Kansas Fugitives and Former Sheriff Among Those Ordered Arrested.

Kansas City, July 6 (A.P.).—The Department of Justice today ordered the arrest of Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, Oklahoma killer, and five escaped Kansas convicts; Verne C. Miller, former Huron, S. Dak., sheriff, and William Weissman in connection with the machine-gun slayings of four officers and their prisoner, Frank Nash, at the Union Station Plaza here June 17.

The announcement by Director of Police Reppert that Miller and Weissman were known to have had a part in the slaughter was followed today by the appearance of circulars issued by the United States Bureau of Investigation asking for the arrest of Floyd and the five convicts.

The circulars were issued at Washington by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the bureau. They named Harvey Bailey, Wilbur Underhill, Ed Davis, James Clark, and Robert G. Brady, who escaped from the Kansas Penitentiary Memorial Day, and Floyd.

The circulars bore the pictures of the six men, described them minutely and stated they are sought in the "murder of Otto Reed, chief of police at McAlester, Okla.; William J. Grooms and Frank E. Hermanson, police officers of Kansas City, Mo.; Raymond J. Caffrey, special agent of the United States Bureau of Investigation, and their prisoner, Frank Nash, at Kansas City, Mo., June 17, 1933."

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—"Just a lad who made mistakes when he was young," was the description given in court today of Louis "Two-Gun" Alterie, one-time Chicago gangster who renounced the city's pavements for the open spaces of a Colorado ranch.

Alterie was arrested last Monday and charged with disorderly conduct.

"This lad," his attorney told Judge Leon Edelman, indicating Alterie, age 47, "this lad did make some mistakes when he was young. But that is no reason for harassing him now."

Police admitted they had no evidence of wrongdoing on Alterie's part. The charge was dismissed.

Fliers Will Be Received at White House Today; Run Into Bad Weather.

By Charles E. Planck.

After the "toughest flight" in his career, Capt. Errol Boyd landed at Washington Airport yesterday at 5:05 p. m., after a one-stop flight from Port au Prince, Haiti.

He and his copilot, Robert G. Lyon, were met at the field by the Haitian Minister, Dantes Bennegarde, and escorted to their rooms at the Willard for rest after 22 hours and 50 minutes of flying. Capt. Boyd carried greetings from the President of the Haitian Republic, Stenio Vincente, to President Roosevelt and a gift of special Haitian coffee for use on the White House table. After reception of the fliers at the White House today, the Haitian Minister will hold a reception at 3 p. m. at the embassy.

"The only worry we didn't have last night was whether the plane would hold together," Capt. Boyd said. "We were told by weather authorities in Haiti that if we took off we would run into tropical storms. Then they told us if we didn't take off yesterday, we would probably not be able to make the flight for two months. So we took off at 5:30 last night, and had pretty fair weather for three hours. Then we ran into the most amazing mixture of thundershowers and electrical storms that I've ever seen. It was far worse than my flight across the Atlantic in the same ship.

"We had no fear that the plane would fail us, because the Columbia is rich with a record of successful flights, nor did we distrust the motor. We flew by instruments alone most of the night, and varied our altitude from 50 feet to 7,000 feet. I saw the lights of a ship just before daybreak, and I circled around it for three hours, waiting for weather to improve. Then I saw a promise of clear weather toward the south; and after a short time, saw the lights of Havana. Things looked better ahead, so we headed for the mainland, touching the shore at Key West.

"We had planned on 16 hours of flying, and we realized we would have to refuel, so we landed at Savannah at 11:25 a. m. yesterday."

Capt. Boyd brings a number of philatelic covers which will be cacheted at the postoffice here, and some of them presented to the President. He also carries letters from Philip Armour, American Ambassador to the Haitian Republic, to his superiors in the State Department, and a letter from the Mayor of Port au Prince to the Mayor of New York.

He will remain here until Sunday and then fly on to New York.

Bolivians Are Repelled, Paraguay Forces Claim

Asuncion, Paraguay, July 6 (A.P.). An official announcement today reported that heavy fighting was continuing in the Fort Nanawa sector of the Gran Chaco between Paraguayan and Bolivian forces. The communique added that Paraguayan forces had repulsed five attacks during the morning.

Equality Drive Given Backing By First Lady

Physical Difference Factor Ignored by Woman's Party, She Says.

The fundamental difference between men and women is ignored by the National Woman's Party in its equal rights for women campaign, it was explained yesterday by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at her weekly press conference.

The First Lady expressed her view when asked if she approved of the party's campaign against discriminations of women in employment.

"It is a difference and not an inequality," said Mrs. Roosevelt, "and does not mean that these certain physical restrictions put women on a lower efficiency basis than men. This difference is physical, not mental, and woman's contribution to the world is just as important as that of men and should be preserved."

"Women can, and do, make their contribution to the work of the world," pointed out the First Lady, "and I certainly advocate equal pay for women in equal work with men."

Mrs. Roosevelt protested the movement to crowd married women out of the industrial and business world at present, but said that she realized that this course may be necessary, temporarily, owing to the economic crisis, and to make jobs go around. She was most emphatic, however, in declaring that any laws which prevent any group from working would be class legislation and, as such, she was opposed to it on general principles.

That the membership of the National Woman's Party, she believed, was made up of educated women capable of protesting against any exploitation, was a further statement of Mrs. Roosevelt. Many groups of women, Mrs. Roosevelt claimed, are not capable of protecting themselves in this manner and are not as ready and efficient in forming themselves into unions and therefore need protective legislation.

Mrs. Roosevelt said that while there are no unions in the Val Kyl furniture factory maintained by her and her friend, Miss Nancy Cook, near Poughkeepsie, this institution is run according to union regulations.

In concluding, Mrs. Roosevelt stated that in her opinion woman has to do her job twice as well as if done by a man to be considered on the same level with him.

Kiwanians Told Not to Fear Death

"It is futile to think of death when life is pulsating rich all around us," Roe Fulkerson, editorial writer of the Kiwanis Magazine, told a luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club yesterday at Hotel Mayflower.

Mr. Fulkerson gave the same address, which he called "Quo Vadis," at the Kiwanis International Convention in Los Angeles, June 26.

He pointed out the error in wasting so much energy in worry about death and not taking time to cultivate the finer things in life, particularly friendship.

Rites Tomorrow.

Mrs. R. J. Dawson Dies Here at 86

Nasty Weather Delays Air Fleet

1,500-Mile Hop to Labrador Held Up to Await Better Weather.

Reykjavik, Iceland, July 6 (A.P.). Gen. Italo Balbo and the 100 Italian aviators piloting an armada of 24 seaplanes to the Century of Progress in Chicago tonight awaited improved weather conditions for the next trek to Cartwright, Labrador, 1,500 miles away.

A dispatch to the Mackay Radio & Commercial Cable Co. in New York said Gen. Balbo, the Italian air minister, expected a delay of a few days at Reykjavik, due to unfavorable weather conditions.

Emergency arrangements have been made for a landing at Italiahaab, Greenland, for the armada in the event a nonstop flight to Cartwright is impossible.

Shoemaker, Stick to Your Last.

Some of the plans for economy, at the expense of the Government workers, are somewhat in the way of the old shoemaker who stopped his clock, he said, to save time.

Some of his friends said to save the works. Others said to save the winding. However, the real reason was to stop something. Then he bought a new watch, but the watch, it would not go properly. Then he relented and had the clock running again, but only in the daytime. Then finally he let the clock run all of the time, as per usual, and then everything was all right.

He discovered that it does not not pay to monkey too much with the machine and that the old works give better service if properly oiled and made to know that they are useful. WILLIE HOMER.

The particular age is not important, because Dr. Pistor appears to smile with the years. Serious as occasion demands, witty as needs be, he holds the line in any discussion. Well-founded causes find him at once their champion.

"Has he any hobby?" you ask. "Yes; it's meat inspection." He believes that sanitary conditions at abattoirs are contributory to wholesome meat and meat food products, and that the Nation's meat supply should have veterinary inspection. Doctor, may Father Time continue to be your friend.

THE Federal Diary's remarks in Wednesday's issue of The Post on my trip to Washington to propose the holding of an aeronautical "carnival in the air" and a congress of aviators, while the National Legislative Congress was still in session, in June, 1909, ties up also with my syndicate article carried by numerous leading dailies for release on June 27, 1909.

This article (illustrated) proposed use of wireless and the portable mooring mast in connection with aircraft for polar exploration and followed an address which I delivered before the Aero Club of America, New York City, on March 29, as noted by press dispatches on the next day, and by the American Geographical Bulletin, page 456, in July of that year.

Illustrations of Admiral Byrd's encampment at "Little America" compared with the illustration in my syndicated articles prove that my conception had not been "overdrawn" by the artist to whom I personally dictated the specifications of the illustration. These included a dirigible in flight toward one of the mooring masts, but which was "brushed out" unknown to me by direction of the art editor, who deemed the use of aircraft for polar work "too visionary" at that time.

• • • •

WHEN in 1923 the Bureau of Aeronautics was established, I submittid to the bureau a copy of my syndicated article and a rough drawing of my mooring mast conception, proposing its use on a tender ship to the dirigible Shenandoah on a voyage of exploration in the Arctic regions. Upon submitting the sketch to Commander Lansdowne, he appeared much pleased and exclaimed, "That'll work," and soon thereafter the mast was ordered on the Patoka. The polar voyage (which I volunteered to accompany) was never undertaken, but the mooring mast continues in use by the Navy Department.

It was about this time that Glenn Curtis established his experimental and development station at Hammondsport, N. Y., and in the course of his endeavors a nonstop flight was undertaken from New York to Ceveland.

This terminated in failure when the plane, after several forced landings, came to grief in tree top, not far from Binghamton, as I recall.

• • • •

HOWEVER, I felt certain that the time was at hand when a machine meeting such requirements would be built. My reasons for this confidence I will To his Hammond sport plant now state:

Curtiss called my kinsman and friend, the late Thomas S. Baldwin, inventor of the rigid parachute, and well-known aeronaut, as his assistant and counsellor. Tom and his brother, Samuel, had manufactured the free balloon equipment for the Baldwin-Ziegler expedition of 1901-1902, &c., and Tom frequently spent his week-ends with me in New York City at the time of these experimental flights.

Then it was that I "let loose a secret" and exclaimed, "Tom, you'll never make the aeroplane a success till you house-in the motor," etc., and went on to explain to him how it was that an expensive launch which had been presented to me for use in the Arctics would not function owing to inadequate space for maintaining heat about the motor and its accessories.

We made use of the wood-work of the launch for sledge material, and the cause of the failure of the motor to function was then taken into account and applied at the Curtiss Plant by "housing-in" the motor and accessories and the pilot as well. Aviation added to the launch a pair of strong wings, lifted her into the air, flew down the Hudson, sped across the Atlantic, rushed to the Poles and across the Arctic and around the globe. "annihilating time and space," as "through the ages one increasing purpose runs' and the thoughts of men are widened with the process of the suns."—CAPT. E. B. BALDWIN.—

"President Should Act Decisively"

THE July issue of The Federal Employee, official N. F. F. E. magazine, will give prominent display to the following editorial headed, "The President Should Act Decisively!"

"President Roosevelt should act immediately to save the merit system of the Federal Government from the spoilsmen.

"Facing the greatest crisis of its career, the merit system's preservation will depend upon the course taken by the President.

"Not alone the new emergency agencies but the entire departmental structure is menaced by the encroaching shadow of the spoilsman.

"That shadow must be dissipated by a clear-cut decisive stand by the President of the United States.

"He is the one man who can reassure the Nation that the Federal Government service is not to be thrown open to politics; who can reassure the Nation that the civil service will be maintained inviolate. * * *

"The Government is engaged in a gigantic task to revive the economic life of the country. Sound business judgment demands that a trained, qualified personnel be employed to aid the administrators in the monumental work. Unless such a personnel is utilized, crippling inefficiency necessarily must result. The way to avoid this is to employ men and women who have qualified under the merit system.

"From the standpoint of the Government and the taxpayer, the merit system is simply good business. The merit system inevitably means greater economy and greater efficiency. That is a fact which no amount of dialectic can explain away. * * * *"

THERE is great grief among the ladies of the Department of Justice since announcement that Loyd G. Andrews (*), Appoint-Clerk's Office, is gathering together his hard-earned sheepskins and returning to the scenes of his childhood.

Mr. Andrews has been appointed assistant superintendent and chief clerk of the Menominee Indian Reservation at Keshina, Wis., and will enter upon his new duties about July 24.

Ardent admirers of the beloved "Andy" arrived in the appointment clerk's office at 3 p. m. last Friday and presented him with a pair of downright swanky bronze Lincoln statue book ends (which he had announced he'd like to have) together with a heart-rending farewell speech by Mr. Sornborger, and, for the first time in his startling career, the Beau Brummel was speechless.

Chamber Gives Indorsement to Regatta Plans

Also Backs Movement for Model Small Home; Safety Program.

Directors of the Washington Chamber of Commerce yesterday unanimously indorsed the 1933 President's Cup Regatta as an outstanding civic event which features Washington's waterfront and promotes yachting, motor boating and other water sports, A. G. Neal was appointed to attend a meeting of the sponsoring committee next Tuesday night.

President Thomas P. Littlepage reported progress on the chamber movement to add 40 miles to the Washington trade territory by the construction of the Chesapeake Beach Ferry to the Eastern Shore, already favorably reported by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The board indorsed the proposal of the Washington Home Building League to construct a model small home at the southeast corner of Seventh street and Pennsylvania aveue, to stimulate small-house construction. This project, backed by leading building and building supply firms, differs from the renovise movement, which concerns repairs and remodeling of existing structures, as it deals entirely with new housing.

George E. Kenelpp reported on the five-point program for pedestrian safety evolved by his committee on transportation, which received the board's indorsement. T. S. Settle, chairman, parks and bridges committee, reported on the Calvert Street Bridge situation, and other reports were received from the membership committee, Creed W. Fulton, chairman, and the manufactures committee, Robert B. Swope, chairman.

President Littlepage told of the chamber's request that the five-day week be not enforced at the navy yard, and of the subsequent indefinite postponement of this proposal. He stated also that the chamber had agreed to create a trust fund to defray cost of the local food products grading service of the Department of Agriculture, and that recent developments pointed to the early undertaking of work upon the final steps of the District of Columbia-Cumberland airline highway route which will save 25 miles for east-west motor traffic through Washington.

Boardman Buried As Fliers Grieve

Middletown, Conn., July 6 (A.P.).—Russell Boardman was buried today in the plot owned by his family for generations. Soaring overhead, pilots who flew him as coholder of the long-distance, nonstop flight record, dipped in salute.

John Polando, of Lynn, Mass., who was with Boardman on his historic flight from New York to Turkey in 1931, stood bareheaded at the grave as flowers, scattered from the planes, drifted to the ground.

Boardman was injured fatally Saturday when his ship crashed at the Municipal Airport, Indianapolis, while he was racing from New York to Los Angeles. He died in the Indianapolis City Hospital Monday.

Bloc Considers Customs Union To Guard Gold

7 European Nations Seek Protection Pending Stabilization of Dollar.

London, July 6 (A.P.).—A gold bloc customs union was understood in high French quarters tonight to be under consideration as the next step in the fight against inflation.

The union, it was said, probably would be provisional pending stabilization of the dollar and pound and would reinforce measures now being taken by the gold bloc central bank to keep the currencies of France, Holland, Switzerland, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Italy and Poland from sinking dangerously.

A water-tight bloc, it was said, is the object of this united action to protect the gold standard from the depreciated dollar and pound. Freer exchanges of products within this group of nations would assist Holland, Switzerland and Belgium to maintain their currencies at the present parities, it was held.

Fears of inflation are still very real to the inhabitants of these countries, a delegate said, and the governments' banks are forced to use all possible ammunition in the fight against the dollar-sterling group.

Fifth Maryland Formally Asks Federal Funds

Delegation Appears Before Ritchie Group to Push Public Works Plans.

Voicing an appeal for a major slice of the Government's public works funds allotted to the State, the Fifth Maryland Congressional District yesterday filed formal application for Federal aid in a huge construction program.

The congressional district, which includes Anne Arundel, Prince Georges, Calvert, Howard, St. Marys and Charles counties, was represented at a meeting of Gov. Ritchie's full committee in Baltimore by Representative Stephen W. Gambrill, assisted by H. C. Byrd and J. H. Walton.

Among the foremost projects supported were several Federally planned engineering projects. The dredging of Paris Creek Harbor, the completion of sewerage projects and the building of breakwaters in Annapolis, the building of ten apartment houses at the Naval Academy and the erection of a smokeless powder plant in Charles County assumed a prominent place in the proposals.

The recommendations followed a fiery speech by E. Brooke Lee, of the State Roads Commission, in which he called upon the committee to make a united effort to obtain for Maryland its just share of funds from the new law. Lee, emphasized the need of financial aid for the mammoth road program now under way. In this division, he pointed out, lies the proposed super-highway from Silver Spring through to the northern cities. This construction must be completed at a monetary output of several millions of dollars.

"The highway," he pointed out, "would be constructed in several divisions. If something went wrong and the State was unable to complete the full project, each section would serve its locality as an individual highway."

A belt line highway around Baltimore, to connect with all streets from the city, was then asked. Other road plans included the proposal to widen the Baltimore-Philadelphia, Baltimore-Bel Air, and Baltimore-Annapolis highways, and the construction of bridges throughout the State.

The committee, presided over by Frank Roberts, of Baltimore, and composed of Gov. Ritchie, the State's Congress members, and many other prominent citizens, heard reports from all of the six Maryland Congressional districts.

Appropriations for Baltimore and vicinity, amounting to $21,311,500, were asked by Representative William P. Cole, of the Second District. This would include funds for schools, sewerage and county roads.

A resolution was proposed that the full committee submit the proposals now ready to the executive committee for final decision before recommendation to the Federal Government. Gov. Ritchie immediately arose with the objection that under such circumstances Maryland would have to produce the full credit for the 70 per cent repayable to the Government.

"Whereas, if the State waits until action is taken by other States the amount of security and rate of interest demanded might be reduced when it is seen the poorer sections of the country are not able to meet the demands," he said.

The resolution was then tabled. Another, offered by Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore, that the reports already received and those to be received later be referred to the executive committee, was then adopted. This unit will meet in the near future. Another meeting of the full committee has been called for next Tuesday.

Capital Woman Will Head Overseas Service League

Miss Faustine Dennis Is Elected President at Pittsburgh Session.

Miss Faustine Dennis, Grace Dodge Hotel, an employe of the Library of Congress, was elected national president of the Women's Overseas Service League at the national convention in Pittsburgh yesterday.

Mrs. Fred W. Franks and Mrs. Margaret Hood Robbins, both of Washington, were elected national corresponding secretary and national treasurer, respectively. The Grace Dodge Hotel was chosen as the national headquarters for the next two years.

The league is composed of women who served overseas with the Army, Navy, State Department and other branches of the Government. Other members of the league were associated with welfare organizations, such as the American Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A.

One of the most important undertakings in the program of the league is the care of disabled women who had overseas service. At present there are nearly 11,000 such women who have never been eligible for care under the veterans' act, according to reports of the league.

Sewer System Cost Equality Plans Drawn

Arlington County Bureau of The Post, Clarendon, Va., Tel. Clar. 500.

The cost of the Arlington County sewer system will be borne by unimproved plots of land in the same proportion as improved property, if legislation referred by the Arlington County Civic Federation to its legislative committee should be enacted by the extra session of the General Assembly next month.

It is proposed that the bonds for sewer mains be financed by taxes levied upon the land only, exclusive of any structural improvements, or that, in lieu of taxes, there be levied special assessments, spread over a period of 25 to 30 years, against all lands within the county in proportion to the actual benefits. Since it is probable that all lands in the county will ultimately be developed as residential property and eventually use mains to be laid at this time, it is believed by the sponsors of the legislation that all lands should be assessed in approximately equal amounts.

Such a plan, proponents declare, should obviate one of the principal objections to sewer bonds entertained by a large bloc of voters, namely, that owners of improved property, under the present system of levying taxes against both the land and buildings, will pay nearly the entire cost of the sewer main facilities of those lots which do not come into development within the immediate future.

Another proposal, referred to the committee, provides that "none of the bonds shall be sold nor any of the sewer mains constructed except pursuant to an order of the circuit court upon petition by the county board or by 50 voters or resident taxpayers of the county and after a public hearing upon such petition. If, from the evidence adduced at such hearing, the court shall be of the opinion that the public health requires the immediate installation of the sewer mains set out in the petition, the court shall thereupon make an order authorizing and directing the board forthwith to issue the necessary bonds and to construct such mains or such portion of them as the court shall find to be required by the public interest."

The sponsors of the latter proposal declare that many voters will vote against the bond issue through fear that the county board may arbitrarily or capriciously extend sewer lines into areas in advance of their actual need or withhold the installation in communities where the need is immediate. Their proposal, they declare, will give every citizen and every community a day in court and will constitute a check upon improvident actions of the board.

Federal Funds Are Sought for Park Program

Montgomery Group to Ask Aid on Projects Under Recovery Act.

A program of park improvements throughout Montgomery County, Md., approved yesterday by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, will be presented today with other county projects for sanction of the public works committee meeting at Frederick, Md.

Aggregating some $263,000, the items will be submitted to the committee by J. Bond Smith, of Takoma Park, counsel for the park and planning group. The commission yesterday adopted a resolution approving development of Montgomery County park units and authorized a number of projects to be placed before the committee today.

Under the national recovery act, the Federal Government supplies 30 per cent of the funds and the commission furnishes the remainder. It is understood that approximately 30 items were approved by the park and planning group yesterday. These are in the first and second units of both Rock Creek and Sligo Valley parkways.

Unfinished Items Listed.

Leaders in Montgomery and Frederick counties will seek funds to carry out proposed projects. The public works committee will consider items in the Sixth Maryland Congressional District.

A list of unfinished items was prepared yesterday by the board of Montgomery County commissioners. They will be presented to the committee by Lacy Shaw, president of the board.

Meeting at Rockville, the board voted to request sufficient funds to complete the administration's 1931 road and school schedule.

T. Howard Duckett, chairman of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, also will appear before the Sixth Congressional committee. He will seek money to carry out the $403,010 program of Montgomery County water and sewer projects.

Recommendations for a school construction program will be made by the Montgomery County Civic Federation. Funds aggregating $751,000 will be requested by Stephen James, Richard H. Akers, Robert Bondy and O. M. Kile, representing the federation.

The school program will include the following items:

Poolesville School, addition to present building, $8,000; Sandy Spring School, new four-room unit, $22,000; Damascus School, new four-room unit, $22,000; Gaithersburg School, new four-room unit, $22,000; first unit of new Western Suburban District High School, $165,000; Alta Vista School, new four-room unit, $22,000; first unit of new Eastern Suburban District High School, $165,000; Fairland School, new four-room unit, $22,000; Chevy Chase Elementary School, 12-room second unit, $85,000; improvements to Rockville Colored School, $10,000; Woodside School, addition, $18,000; Rockville School, new four-room unit, $55,000; Bethesda School, $12,000; Germantown School, addition, $18,000; sites for schools, $85,000, and necessary equipment, $30,000.

Other requests will be made at the hearing by the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce, the Rockville Chamber of Commerce, Rockville Mayor and Council, Rockville Pike Business Association, Rockville Pike Citizens Association, Kensington Chamber of Commerce, and the Gaithersburg Town Council.

The Civic Federation's road program includes construction of a highway from Boyds toward Germantown, improvement of the Brownsville pike, extension of the Viers Mill road, from Wheaton to Rockville, and numerous other projects.

The federation also has approved a number of strictly Federal projects which probably will be presented.

Maryland will receive $3,600,000 under the recovery act. This will be used for State highway construction, while projects of a county nature will be financed on the 70-30 basis.

Presbyterian Picnic Today.

The Arlington Presbyterian Sunday School will hold its annual picnic today at Chapel Point. Automobiles and buses will leave from the church at 9 a. m.

Fairfax School Calendar Is Set For Next Term

The annual school calendar for the 1933-34 term in Fairfax County, Va., was set yesterday by the county school board at its regular monthly meeting.

The public schools will open on September 14, according to the schedule. The annual district teachers' meeting will be held on October 28 and Thanksgiving on November 30. The next vacation will be the Christmas holidays, which begin on December 22 and end on January 2, 1934. Schools will be closed on Washington's Birthday and for the Easter holidays from Thursday evening until the following Tuesday morning and the annual summer vacation will begin on June 8. This will give the complete school term of 180 days. Contrary to former policies of the school board the teachers will receive no pay on holidays.

John T. De Bell, of Centerville district, was reelected chairman of the school board and Wilbert T. Woodson was reelected clerk.

Several schools have been damaged by persons breaking into the buildings and others by breaking of window glass. A reward of $25 was authorized to persons giving information leading to the apprehension and conviction of the vandals.

Roy O. Brumback was appointed county inspector on the new Groveton School project. The check deposited with the bid of J. H. Moring, contractor, who surrendered his bid for construction of the Groveton building was declared forfeited and the money was ordered placed in the Mount Vernon District special school fund.

BETHOLINE

SHERWOOD BROS., INC.
Announce
A REDUCTION OF
2¢ per gallon
IN THE PRICE OF BETHOLINE

FOR the thousands of motorists who use Betholine, we need add only one statement to the above announcement. This reduction in price involves no change in quality. Betholine has never been changed, and will never be changed, except to improve it. For others here are a few important facts.

Betholine for many years has commanded a 5¢ premium—the highest price of any motor fuel. It has commanded that price because it contains Benzol—the highest priced ingredient used in any motor fuel . . . because automotive engineers pronounce a Benzol Blend the ideal fuel for modern, high compression motors . . . because Betholine has convinced thousands of motorists that it is well worth five cents extra.

But now you need no longer pay five cents extra. Now you get Betholine for only three cents more than regular gasolines—the lowest premium at which it has ever been sold.

It gives us pleasure to announce this saving to present—and future—users of Betholine, "The Finest Motor Fuel Made." If you are not using Betholine, we hope that you will try it.

The Public Works Fund.

Among the many important problems awaiting President Roosevelt on his return from his cruise is a controversy over the spending of the $3,300,000,000 which Congress appropriated for public works. A group of senators is urging the President to accelerate the public works program, thus providing a quick stimulus for business and industry. It is reported that they have the support of some members of the Cabinet.

Budget Director Douglas favors a more moderate policy, and it is understood that he has presented his views at the White House with no less vigor than the advocates of a heavy spending program. The group represented by Mr. Douglas believes that industrial recovery is already underway and there is no need for an extensive public works program that would provide a flush of activity now and leave the country with a tremendous addition to its debt a year from now. In the opinion of this group Congress intended only to start the movement toward recovery through expenditures on public works. Since the business upturn has gotten underway without that stimulus, it is said there is no pressing need for the expenditure of the full $3,300,000,000 which Congress placed at the discretion of the President.

Some of the public works fund has already been allotted, including the $238,000,000 for naval construction and $400,000,000 for highways. It may be assumed that some other projects will be approved, particularly those which are essential to the maintenance of services rendered by the Government. But the Public Works Administration has indicated that only projects that are economically sound and that will not entail continuing expenses for the Government will be approved. If this rule is strictly observed, the allotment of funds will necessarily be slow and deliberate. Experience has proved that it is impossible to spend a vast sum of money on public works in a very brief period without wasting a considerable part of it.

Another danger that might arise from an effort to speed up the public works program would be a maldistribution of the benefits among the States. Missouri, for example, has prepared a list of projects requiring $458,000,000, no doubt hoping to get a large slice of the public works melon by acting with dispatch. The addition of any such sum to the public debt of Missouri or any other State would indeed be serious business. The requests of some States are apparently based on the belief that in the end Congress will assume the role of Santa Claus and forgive them the debts thus created. There is, of course, no such present intention.

So far as taxpayers are concerned it makes little difference whether the money to finance the public works program is paid to State or Federal agencies. All that is spent must ultimately come out of the pockets of the people. If an extravagant program of expenditures is followed, it will increase the tax burden for many years.

Advocates of heavy expenditures from the public works fund would have a better case if the country were still confronted by shrinking business and production. But most of the indices record notable improvements at present. There is no emergency demanding reckless spending by the Government. A gigantic outlay for public improvements might hasten recovery now only to bring reactions when the money would be gone and the public would be left with a huge new debt to pay.

Moderation is always a good policy when there is a tendency toward sharp turns in economic activity. Prudent hunters do not exhaust their ammunition on the first rabbit that is aroused from the brush. It appears that Congress gave the President discretion in the expenditure of this vast sum only in order that it might be used in harmony with the changes in economic conditions.

Historical Parks.

The dedication of Morristown National Historical Park brings under the protection of the Government another spot of great significance in the history of the United States. Morristown, where revolutionary heroes lie buried, where Washington made his headquarters during the winter of 1779-80, where many relics enriched by their association with the first President are now guarded, deserves thanks for the preservation of this national shrine.

Deeds turned over to Secretary Ickes convey to the Government the old Ford mansion, where Washington made his headquarters, the Jockey Hollow encampment and cemetery and old Fort Nonsense, a ruin of earth-works erected more than a century and a half ago. The old mansion has been in the hands of the Washington Association of New Jersey since 1874. It contains many of the most famous relics of Washington's time in existence, and is maintained as a public museum. Citizens of Morristown rescued much of the other property from real estate concerns.

More parks of this kind would be a credit to the country. In the West great areas have been preserved as monuments of scenic beauty. Fewer areas of this kind are available in the East, but the Atlantic seaboard is immensely rich in historical spots. Some of them have been converted into Federal parks. Congress seems disposed to accept any area of great historical significance that is offered free to the Government for preservation. The dedication at Morristown may contain a hint for many other communities of equal historical importance.

Disorder at Lorton.

Disturbances that arose last week in the District Reformatory at Lorton apparently have not yet been quieted. The prisoners engaged in demonstrations again on Monday in spite of the efforts of officials to remove the causes of any grievance and to restore complete order. Later it was revealed that four prisoners who refused to join in the disorder have been threatened by the revolting majority.

A threat of military discipline for the entire institution was essential to avert further trouble. The four men who were menaced have been placed in solitary confinement to afford them protection. It seems apparent that a spirit of rebellion is seething at Lorton. A period of severe discipline may be necessary to insure restoration of order.

The District Reformatory is all that its name implies. It is not a penal institution of the old-fashioned type in which convicts are made to suffer extreme hardships for their wrong-doing. The officials at Lorton have undertaken to reform their prisoners by kind treatment and education. Privileges of association and freedom of conduct have been granted to an extent that is unknown in many institutions.

It is evident that some inmates at Lorton are abusing the privileges granted to them by sympathetic officials. Prisoners frequently mistake kindness for weakness, with disastrous results. In the criminal mind reasonable privileges often lead to unreasonable demands. Officials have to recognize the distressing fact that some men do not respond to kindness but take advantage of it to extend their depredations upon society.

Lorton seems to have come under the influence of some prisoners of this type. The investigation which is being made by Capt. M. M. Barnard, general superintendent of penal institutions of the District, may reveal the source of this irritation and put Lorton in order once more. It is important that the innocent prisoners who refused to join in fomenting trouble be afforded protection and that the real agitators be identified. Disciplinary measures may be found essential to make the inmates of Lorton understand that disorder will not be tolerated.

Horace M. Albright.

In the resignation of Horace M. Albright, director of the National Park Service, the Government loses a brilliant and devoted builder and defender of adult playgrounds. For 21 years he has given free rein to his fine conservationist instincts by helping to weld Uncle Sam's widely scattered natural wonderlands into a compactly organized and efficiently administered governmental service. The beneficiaries of this work are numbered by thousands in every State. He has seen the National Park Service develop from a mere office in the Interior Department, into a nation-wide plant serving hundreds of thousands of citizens annually.

Since Mr. Albright assumed the post of director, early in 1919, ten new parks and monuments have been added to the national catalogue. Among these are the world-famous Carlsbad Caverns, Death Valley, Grand Canyon, and the historic Colonial National Monument in the James valley of Virginia.

A native of California and a graduate of the State University, Mr. Albright entered the Interior Department in May, 1913, as personal aide to the late Secretary Franklin K. Lane. With the organization of the National Park Service under Stephen T. Mather in 1917, he was advanced to assistant director. For nine years following 1919 he was at once superintendent of Yellowstone National Park and field director for the national service.

Mr. Albright leaves the Government to enter business. Throughout the United States stand the living memorials of his long and notable public service. In Washington, a host of friends and associates in government salute him with cordial good wishes.

Europe and Wheat.

Europe now controls the fate of the wheat conference. After extended negotiations Australia has consented to act with the United States, Canada and Argentina in limiting wheat production during the next two years, if European producers will also cooperate in the movement. Two formidable hurdles remain to be cleared before consummation of the agreement is assured. The Balkan states, which are large producers of wheat, must be brought within the agreement, and the nations of Western Europe, which are producing wheat under the protection of high tariff barriers, must be induced to import more of this staple from countries now producing a surplus.

Considerable difficulty was encountered in bringing Australia into the agreement. The Australian provinces were reluctant to accept any curtailment of acreage. Stanley Bruce, who heads the Australian wheat delegation in London, emphatically declares that his country will not go further with the negotiations unless concessions can be obtained from European importers. In other words, Australia refuses to cut down her wheat acreage unless assurance is forthcoming that a larger world market will be opened to absorb the existing surplus.

The agreement in principle among the four large exporting nations is nevertheless an important step forward. Australia, Argentina, Canada and the United States accept the theory that wheat production and exports should be temporarily adjusted to the world demand "with a view to improving the price of wheat and liquidating the surplus stocks now overhanging the market." Previous conferences on the wheat problem have not been able to proceed this far.

Italy and Soviet Russia are the only European countries that have manifested any inclination to cooperate with the wheat-producing countries. The participation of Germany, France and Belgium is regarded as necessary to satisfy the demands of Australia and Argentina. Apparently these countries are in no mood to grant concessions. In some quarters they are expected to strengthen their efforts to achieve a greater degree of self-sufficiency by growing more of their foodstuffs.

Another factor that is delaying agreement upon a 15 per cent reduction of wheat acreage is the extremely short crops forecast for the United States and Canada. If the latest estimates prove correct, the world's carryover of wheat may be reduced to normal this year. The delegates of all countries realize, of course, that this is an accident of nature, but enthusiasm for artificial curtailment is nevertheless weakened when the weather plays such pranks on the wheat farmer.

The Gran Chaco War.

It is a matter of profound regret that fighting should have broken out again in the Gran Chaco just as the League of Nations commission prepares to investigate the situation. Dispatches from La Paz report that Bolivia launched a formidable attack upon the troops of Paraguay. For 36 hours the battle lasted with heavy casualties on both sides. Approximately 2,000 are reported to have been killed and as many wounded on the Paraguayan side alone.

The reason for this renewal of hostilities has not been made clear. Paraguayan officials attribute it to a desire on the part of Bolivia to obtain a better strategical position before the League's investigation begins. For some time the armies in the Gran Chaco have been observing an armistice, although Bolivian officials had not formally agreed to it. The fresh outbreak of hostilities puts the League's commission at a great disadvantage.

War resulting from the Bolivian-Paraguayan border dispute has been in progress for a year. Various efforts to stop it through arbitration, through the good offices of foreign powers and the League of Nations have proved ineffective. The League is now making a new attack upon the problem by sending a commission into the disputed territory. But in the meantime many lives are lost and the faith of the people in the peace-making machinery of the world is severely shaken.

A Washington young man left a suicide note and turned up in Florida, so he may or may not have changed his mind as to his destination.

Now provision must be made for the unemployed delegates to the London conference.

Trucks Become Debonair.

By William Ullman.

Traffic may wear an old and haggard look these days, but that dispiriting condition is not destined always to survive. Anyone who finds it discomforting perhaps can derive solace from the knowledge that when it spruces up again traffic is going to look better than ever.

This result can be expected not because the best looking segment of the automobile street scene, the passenger car, is more handsome, but rather because the least handsome, the truck, has taken on a dapper and debonair appearance.

In the general concentration of interest upon passenger vehicle appearance, the fact that truck eye-appeal has been even more startlingly improved has eluded general recognition. It is worth the time of any one with an eye to automotive beauty to check up on the situation. A pleasant surprise is in store for him.

Naturally, the handsomer commercial vehicles are those comparatively petite products, so many of which are put out by manufacturers of passenger cars. The frontal appearance of most of these is identical with that of the companion product in the passenger car class. This sameness goes down to such details as twin horns, radiator grilles and other items which even a few years ago would have seemed entirely out of place upon such an automotive product.

New types of commercial car in respect to bodies also are a favorable factor in the changing situation with regard to traffic's prettiness. The sedan delivery is the most notable example. This model is almost identical with the regular passenger model of the same name, the most prominent difference being that a single door is built into the rear of the body instead of the two doors at the side.

Heavier commercial cars, too, are being endowed with appearance appeal. Their manufacturers, naturally, are more limited in the matter of producing handsome body lines, for they must pay the closest of attention to developing cargo space that makes efficient use of the last inch to carry the ultimate pound. In the process, however, they do not overlook the considerations of graceful lines and appealing, though practical, colorings.

The average man may be of the opinion that those who buy trucks are not particularly influenced by eye-appeal, as the industry calls appearance. Yet the men who sell commercial vehicles, especially those used for delivery purposes, point out that it is an impressive force in closing most deals.

The situation with regard to traffic's jaded look today becomes less somber when one realizes that it must give place to something better than ever has been known before.

One Crop That Never Fails. —Brooklyn Citizen.

Post Haste.

It seems that the London play will be continued, but with both Hamlet and the ghost left out.

The kindest thing now will be to arrange to let our London delegates come in quietly through the back door.

One point has been made clear even to France; our managed currency has set up a one-man menage.

The professors will check up to see that all the key men in the recovery program are authentic Phi Beta Kappas.

Discharging Civil Service workers and asking the P. W. A. for funds for their reemployment will put them in the emergency budget, but is it to be paid for in a different kind of money?

If Col. Lindbergh's air route had been ready Minister Steinhardt might have Garcised another message to the London conference before it was too late.

There was some difficulty about completing the personnel of the American delegation to London, but wait until Uncle Sam tries to pick another.

If a skeleton organization of the conference is to be left in London there will be considerable rivalry among the nations that would supply the staff from their closets.

It seems possible that Secretary Hull, Prof. Moley and the financial experts may have something to say about repudiation on their return.

The storm broke just as Senator Pittman was getting some bites on his silver hook, at least nibbles that removed all the bait.

The only way to secure a decisive conferencial settlement is to have the meeting assemble on a desert isle devoid of communication facilities and attended by delegates authorized to decide.

We are anxious to have a first-hand account as to how Japan was ostracized at the London conference after flouting treaties, invading China and being rebuked by the League of Nations.

Anyhow, the London parley had about reached the point where, as the feller said, the less it did the less it was worse off.

"MOVE WE ADJOURN."

When I'm weary of argument wordy
And tired of continuous debate,
When the speaker like some hurdy gurdy,
Which carries on early and late,
Keeps up a monotonous bellow
On lessons I don't want to learn,
'Tis then I give cheers for the fellow
Who rises and moves to adjourn.

There are motions to lay on the table,
There are motions for this and for that,
And I stick just as long as I'm able
And hark to the chatterer's chat,
I stand for the rising thanks motion
For the one who has done a good turn,
But my friend is the chap with the notion
To get up and move to adjourn.

There are some who like papers and speeches
And open discussions of things;
The heights some new orator reaches;
The lesson and message he brings.
But each his own fancy must cling to.
What one chooses others may spurn.
So this simple tribute I sing to
The brother who moves to adjourn!

Would You Sell Your Food for Money If No Amount of Money Could Buy More?

By Robert Quillen

Seven consecutive summers have failed to reveal a trace of restless ambition or lust for money or covetous envy.

Of those born in the hills, many now live in little wooden houses at the side of the road and depend on a garden, a cow and a few hens for much of their living. They work at odd jobs when there is work to be had, but with or without work they seem to have no capacity for anxiety.

The outlanders are professional and business men for the most part, but they go about their affairs with the same curious detachment. The necessary business of making some money is not a desperate competition, but merely an unimportant chore so be finished before one can go fishing.

There is no frantic struggle to "get ahead," no worry about tomorrow, no apparent pride of possession. There is only a placid acceptance of life, a quiet contentment, a strange and tolerant indifference to all that is called "worldly."

What is the explanation? Where did these people learn such wisdom?

A second gift of life taught them the art of living. They once felt the cold touch of death and then were given a new span of life. They are "arrested cases" or "cures." They came with hollow eyes and thin white hands, and the pine-scented air of the mountains made them well again. Now they are content just to live.

There are many others, of course, who never have been ill; but the pace is set by those who learned the worth of life by coming so close to losing it.

And the pace matches the setting, for this is a land of infinite peace. The sun is down now and the blue hills are changing to purple. There is no sound except the sleepy twitter of birds, the distant lowing of cows waiting to be milked, and the murmur of the pines and the hemlocks.

It is good to be alive in a world as God made it.

Few Americans are conscious of life. From youth to old age they live in a kind of madness. The world is too much with them. They are entranced by the business of getting money. They haven't time to live.

Yet all are under sentence of death, and at the last would give all that they possess for one more day of life. How foolish it is to waste time in getting money you don't need when all the world's wealth can't buy another moment of time.

Political Comment

Motion Picture Inquiry.
Los Angeles Times.

Both the Senate Banking and Currency subcommittee and the Senate Judiciary subcommittee are to spend part of the summer investigating the motion-picture business, and if the investigations result, as they may, in an overhauling of the bankruptcy act they may do some good. There is no doubt that the average bankruptcy results in slight recovery for creditors and total loss for former owners, the expenses usually eating up the assets, if any, and if some simpler procedure can be devised which will be as effective and less costly it will be a gain all around.

The banking and currency investigation will seek to gain light on general business practices through inquiring into the financing methods of the studios, and here any public benefit that may result seems highly dubious. It is pretty well known already what constitutes sound banking and sound financing and what does not, and the prevalence of many practices which are in the latter category will not be particularly influenced by what Congress does in the matter. It is probable the day of big financing profits is gone, in any event, and when large profits are made, as they may be occasionally in motion-picture financing, it will be because the risk is extraordinary and almost equally large losses are frequently encountered.

Home Market Must Be First.
Kansas City Times.

The impression left by the Secretary of Agriculture in his speech at Salina, in which he warned the Kansas farmers not to expect any immediate benefits from the world economic conference, plainly reflects one aspect of the administration's policy toward the conference. It is that, in the opinion of President Roosevelt and his advisers, the industrial and agricultural problems confronting the country today are so pressing that there is not time to wait for solutions by international agreement, which necessarily would be rather slow in becoming effective.

Dr. Smith Speaks Out.
Los Angeles Times.

Alfred E. Smith, LL.D. (Harvard) has no very great opinion of the industrial recovery act and does not understand how it can possibly work. He calls it the work of an "academic planner on a field day," though whether he means the President or the "brain trust" by that term is not clear.

"I am in favor of applying the curb to industry where necessary, but not of placing the heavy, paralyzing hand of the Government on all the business enterprise of the Nation. I believe in good public administration, but I know its limitations. I am in favor of restoring conditions which make business leadership possible, rather than looking to the Government to provide it."

Fair Play for Bureaucrats.
Chicago News.

Washington dispatches describe Federal employes as in a state of panic. The far-reaching authority conferred upon the President to effect economies by consolidating or abolishing Government bureaus leaves no Civil Service worker immune from fear of loss of his job. Neither efficiency nor length of service acts as a stay of sentence if economy calls for an ouster.

Reduction of the overgrown Federal machine is necessary, but there is another side to the picture. While veterans in the Government service are departing, hordes of unemployed, mostly Democrats, are clamoring for work available under the various emergency projects authorized by Congress.

The men and women now facing dismissal should be given first chance, on the basis of fitness, at jobs in the public works administration, industry control, crop-allotment supervision and the numerous other Federal projects now going forward to reduce unemployment and restore prosperity.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

HOLLYWOOD MOTHER GOOSE

Mary had a little Doug,
He had a ruddy glow;
And everywhere that Mary went
The Doug was sure to go.
He followed her to Hollywood
And soon the two were wed;
"The happiest of men and wives,"
The movie public said.

They had a castle called Pickfair
In which true love they shared;
And all day long the tourists came
And stared and stared and stared.
"That's Doug and Mary's palace," they Would say, "And, gosh, I guess
It has to be as big as that
To hold such happiness!"

They had six dozen swimming tanks
To keep refreshed and cool,
And Douglas used to love to dash
And leap from pool to pool;
He loved to scale the palace fence
And jump among the trees,
And hurdle walls and hedges in Shorts above his husky knees.

Our Mary liked to sit and laugh
Exclaiming, "Wottaman!"
(He kept his youth and energy
Through whole wheat bread and bran.)
They lived as children still at play
Insisting with a sigh
That such a perfect love as theirs
Could never, never die.

She was the Nation's little dear—
He its Eternal Boy;
Their pictures filled the papers and
The public crooned with joy.
"Why does the Doug love Mary so?"
The children all did cry;
"Cuz Mary loves the Doug so much,"
The papers did reply.

But leaping fences all day long
To round out one's career
Is bound to pall in time, and Doug
Did one day disappear;
He hopped away to London town
And met a bloomin' prince—
And Mary, eh, how sad, how sad!
She's seldom seen him since.

He'd follow Mary years before
With great alacrity,
But it was nothing to the way
He followed roy-al-ty;
That place back in Hollywood
Had seemed a showplace, but
Compared to those of England it Seemed just a little hut.

And was our Douglas popular?
The British royal set
A leaping, jumping, dashing boy
Like that had never met.
The ladies murmured, "Oh!" and "Ah!"
The men chirped "Ah!" and "Oh!"
And everywhere that Mary went
Her Douglas did not go.

His Mary he forgot about,
As is the movie way,
And Winchell said "The Fairbanks soon
Will melt, the gossips say."
"Absurd!" our Mary did reply;
"The bunk!" said Douglas, too;
Which only had one meaning, boys—
The rumors they were true.

No more will Mary have her lamb,
No more will tourists shove
To get a better view of the Abiding place of love;
No more will Douglas leap the fence
Nor swing from tree to tree;
He does his leaping now among
The old nobility.

L'ENVOI.

Mary had a little Doug,
And maybe she bewails
The day she let him go and play
With Eddie, Prince of Wales.

Letters to the Editor.

Novel Modification of Church Architecture on East Capitol Street.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Thank you for the fine leading editorial in The Post of July 3, concerning the edifice to be erected by the Lutheran Church of the Reformation on East Capitol street opposite the Folger Library.

The government paid us $103,000 for our present property. We paid $33,000 for the parcel of ground on East Capitol street, leaving a little more than $70,000 with which to erect the new building. The members of our congregation are not wealthy. We will do the best we can.

The new location is one of the finest in this beautiful city. It is likely we will have to erect a building apart from the usual ecclesiastical architecture to harmonize with surrounding Government buildings.

If you know of any benevolent minded public spirited citizens who would like to have a share in the erection of this building I and my congregation shall be greatly indebted to you. JOHN WEIDLEY.

Hospital Patients to Be Theater Guests—Film Reviewed

Former Service Men Are to See Great War Film

By Nelson B. Bell.

Circumstances having intervened to prevent the attendance of the disabled war veterans from the Walter Reed, Mount Alto and Naval Hospitals at the official premiere performance of "Forgotten Men," at the Metropolitan Theater tonight, arrangements have been perfected with the theater management and Sam Cummins, distributor of the film, for these former service men to view the picture as guests of The Washington Post on Monday and Thursday afternoons of next week.

On Monday afternoon 100 of the disabled veterans from Walter Reed will be the guests of The Post and the Metropolitan Theater to view this vividly realistic reproduction of scenes of actual warfare, and on Thursday groups of 25 each from the Mount Alto and Naval Hospitals—the total number able to attend—will be similarly entertained.

"Forgotten Men," assembled from the official pictures of the World War preserved in the archives of fourteen combatant nations on both sides in the great conflict, affords the most comprehensive survey of the titanic struggle the screen has ever presented. The former service men will derive a broader understanding of what the struggle in which they participated was like in the large view than they could ever hope to acquire from the limited range of their personal activities at the front.

Furthermore, the film is described by former comrades in arms—all awarded medals for bravery in the field—who have made its revelations the basis of a new world organization of veterans which will strive to prevent future wars and no less to see that justice is done the survivors of the last one.

The innovation of permitting smoking in the mezzanine at RKO-Keith's, inaugurated yesterday, was greeted with enthusiastic expressions of approval on the part of the cash customers. At last report nobody had lighted an old clay pipe stuffed with horse shoe filings and rubber bands and a pleasant time was being had by all. I trust none of Manager Meakin's cigars will escape from his private office into the auditorium of the theater to mar the happiness that now prevails!

Now who will be the first to set up a permanent bar in the lobby of some one of the ornate temples of the titillating tintypes, such as "Frenchy" ran years ago just off the lobby of the old National? Some enterprising maltster ought to be willing to subsidize such a venture. Or would it be subsidize under the present arrangement?

Complete description of an enjoyable Fourth-of-July-week vacation spent in Detroit and environs, as postcarded by Maxine Doyle, who resumes her duties as mistress of ceremonies at the Earle today and beat her written messages back to town:

"Gee, am I having a swell time!"

A new outlet has been found for film product of the first grade. As a special attraction this summer, feature pictures are being presented every Tuesday night in the ballroom at Seaside Park, down at Chesapeake Beach, Md., at a nominal scale of admission charges. The experiment has caught on with the summer cottagers as well as the trippers from Washington and Baltimore.

Last-minute changes in bookings switch "Storm at Daybreak," with Kay Francis and Walter Huston, from Loew's Fox to the Palace the week of July 14, instead of Lionel Barrymore in "The Stranger's Return," which for the time being is out, and send Preston Foster in "The Man Who Dared" into the Fox.

Podrecca's "Piccoli" remains the major stage attraction at Loew's Fox for the week of the 14th, and should not be scorned by any seeker after amusement of the most unusual and delightful character. Vittorio Podrecca is the greatest of the living puppeteers and puts on a performance by inarticulate actors that encompasses all of the essential elements of drama, opera, concert, operetta, vaudeville, revue, spectacle, acrobatics and fantasy.

Only don't sit too close. For best effect and to get the true proportion of the miniature scale on which the scenes of necessity must be presented, it is not desirable to sit farther forward than the tenth or twelfth row. Neither, in a house the size of the Fox, will it be ideal to sit too far back, on account of the diminutive size of many of the figures used in the most enjoyable of the master craftsmen's unique creations. However, perfect perspective is the most you can lose in either case. But that, sometimes, is enough.

"The Piccoli" was one of the last of the American Theater Society's regular season's presentations at the National Theater, no longer ago than the week of last March 6, if you must have dates.

When Joe Penner returns to the Earle as headliner of the vaudeville bill the week of July 14, the engagement will mark his sixth appearance in the Capital as an individual star of picture theater stage presentations. With the possible exception of Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, no act has been able to repeat in Washington so frequently or so successfully as Joe.

You bring the duck!

The Last Man on Earth!

Such is the part in which this handsome young South American, Raul Roulien, will make his stellar debut before Washington audiences at Loew's Columbia, beginning Monday. The title of his picture is, "It's Great to Be Alive." When you're the last surviving man in a world of beautiful women? Well, maybe—then again maybe not!

RKO-Keith's.

"BED OF ROSES." RKO-Radio picturization of a story by Wanda Tuchock, starring Constance Bennett, with Joel McCrea, John Halliday and Pert Kelton. Directed by Gregory La Cava. Reviewed Thursday morning.

If there had to be a moral to this craftily written and skillfully acted romance of the extreme of the social scale, it would be an entirely new idea to the general effect that the course of true love never runs smooth, or perhaps that whether he be a river roustabout on a grimy little Mississippi cotton barge, or a millionaire publisher, living amidst the luxurious grandeur of chromium steel and satin velours, any man is easy prey to a pretty woman!

It sounds trite, of course. So would a detailed recital of the simple love story of the discharged convict who decided that the only difference between her and the gay ladies who reposed on beds of roses was that they were smart.

There would seem to be little that is new or novel in her encounter with two small-time gentlemen on a Mississippi packet from whom she plucked enough money to insure her arrival at New Orleans, where lived the rich man of whose fortune she meant to be at least a temporary beneficiary.

And the device that forced her to leap overboard to avoid arrest, and so meet the master of the little barge, to which she swam after her pursuers had concluded that she was drowned, would not strike upon any alert consciousness as anything new to drama.

Yet, with all its reliance upon dramatic tricks that have been employed successfully since a time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, "Bed of Roses" is far and away the most interesting, the most thoroughly entertaining and the most intelligently contrived and performed vehicle Constance Bennett has had since those remote days of her success as a Robert W. Chambers heroine.

There is no swank, no silken artificiality, no chill aloofness about the lush Miss Bennett in this one. She is alive, warm, natural, human and disarming.

"Bed of Roses" is a trifle tardy in striking its true stride, to be sure, but once the conflict is set up between the homely devotion of the riverman and the hollow luxury of life as the shady chatelaine of the tricked millionaire's opulent establishment, a few dramatic sparks are struck off, situations of some suspense are adroitly leavened by a steady flow of comic byplay, and the piece becomes altogether a handsome instrument for the beguilement of an extremely enjoyable hour or so.

But these two are by no means isolated in their excellence. Pert Kelton and John Halliday contribute impersonations which, within the scope of their possibilities, are second to none. Mr. Halliday, of course, is recognized as one of the most unfailingly competent of actors, but Miss Kelton's superiority will come as a surprise to film fans not heretofore acquainted with her unique endowments. As Minnie, Miss Bennett's congenial jailmate and later intimate, Pert Kelton rates four stars opposite her name.

The supplementary bill is on a par with the superlative excellence of the feature. Joseph Cawthorn, Mae Busch, Harry Gribbon and Geneva Mitchell make the most of a pungent little comedy, "A Divorce Courtship;" a Scrappy Cartoon, "The World's Affair," has a great deal of fun with the Century of Progress Exposition, and there is revived that musico-tragic tale of Harlem and its echo of the primitive jungles, "Black and Tan," in which Duke Ellington and his Cotton Club Orchestra execute a rhythmic and vibrant racial classic.

We've taken the words right out of your mouth

"Luckies Please!" You, our personal friends, have been saying it for years. And because it so aptly sums up the Lucky Strike story, we've taken the words right out of your mouth. "Luckies Please!" of course. They please in the quality of their fine tobaccos. They please in the mildness and purity of "Toasting". They please the taste. They please the throat. In every way and always, "Luckies Please!" May we thank you, Mr. and Mrs. Smoker, for giving us this phrase?

Nourishing Meals at Low Cost With Suggestions for Preparation.

Breakfast—Tomato juice for children, oatmeal milk; bread and butter, milk for children, coffee for adults.

Supper—Escalloped potatoes with milk, carrot relish, whole wheat bread and butter, tea for adults, milk for children.

Vegetable stew—1½ cups dried lima, navy or kidney beans or lentils, 2 quarts cold water, ½ cup rice, 2 cups tomatoes, 1 onion, 4 tablespoons drippings.

Wash and soak lima beans overnight in water. Drain and add fresh water to cover well. Boil for three hours. Brown sliced onion in frying pan, with drippings; add this to the cooked beans, together with tomatoes, washed rice and seasonings. Simmer for one-half hour.

Caramel blanc mange—3 cups fresh or diluted evaporated milk, 6½ level tablespoons flour, 6 tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Mix the flour, salt and ½ cup cold milk. Stir to a smooth paste. Meanwhile, scald the rest of the milk. Pour a little of the scalded milk on the flour mixture and blend. Add this to the remaining milk and stir constantly over fire until the mixture coats the spoon.

Put the sugar in a frying pan over a low fire and stir until it is melted and a golden brown color. Remove from the fire, add slowly, stirring constantly, ¼ cup of boiling water. Return to the stove and stir until smooth. Add the caramelized sugar to the other mixture and cook for 10 to 15 minutes longer. Add the vanilla or other seasoning, if desired, and pour into cold, wet molds or glasses. When cold, turn out on a sauce dish and serve with top milk.

Raw carrot relish—Wash and scrape raw carrots and let stand in cold water until crisp. Drain well. Chop or grate the carrots, season with salt, pepper and a little diluted vinegar and serve. Instead of chopping or grating the carrots, they may be cut in long, thin strips and served like celery.

The Mode . . . Dare

WHAT is this? What is this? Is America bound to always be behind Paris, or what is it?

I just hate to say that. But the prevalence of sportwear in New York, morning, noon and night, is not nice. Hollywood come to New York or what have you? Just when Paris has definitely gone back onto the elegance standard, too.

Let me quote from a recent letter I received from Monsieur Jean Charles Worth.

"What of the new in sports clothes? My dear child, there is nothing really new in sports clothes because they are no longer fashionable. They are practical, built for comfort, not for speed. They are just the same as they were one year, two years and three years ago. They are, thanks to the Goddess of Caprice, no longer worn in town.

"Color came to Parisiennes for town wear from abroad. Every so often it is the chic thing to do in France to accept a new idea from abroad. We play with it for a while, and then discard it for our own old ideas. What do you see the smart women wearing today in Paris? Black and black and white combinations. And, yes, gray—that indeterminate shade between the two.

"And that is why I have based my current collection for the midseason, which will be shown next week, on these tones, using primarily white and black combinations for the summer along with grays and beiges. Can you imagine a woman wearing a pink ensemble these days? Pink dress, hat and coat? No, no, it is unthinkable. The smart Parisienne has returned to her old love, black, combined with white, and I, for one, shall try to please her."

This from Monsieur Worth.

* * * *

Maybe you have a dress that could be worn a lot yet—but needs just something done to those sleeves—to make it stylish. Maybe you have tried and tried to do that something to the sleeves—and in some instances probably succeeded. In some instances not—so why not send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post to see our ideas for making over old sleeves into new? We have some ideas too, you know. Or do you know? Not the same ideas we have told you about, either. Things that just came up lately—that daggon dress which got ruined under the arms that day when we didn't expect the weather to be so hot nor ourselves to be so tired, for instance. And being always helpful, we just put all the new things we had learned into a leaflet—and if you would like to see it, send for it, yes?

* * * *

There is an example of what smart town wear for the summer is. Phillippe et Gaston are making a lot of black and one-color frocks of utter chic—and cross-barring the whole thing in white.

Mandrucca, by the way, is so named from the little African port that sends to the world the finest sponges. Mandrucca is sponge-like in appearance, but it actually is one of the new materials which cuts and sews and drapes in a simply heavenly manner!

Sweeping Opera Cape Promises to Be Popular

Hollywood, July 6 (A.P.).—Among the secrets of forthcoming fashions is an opera cape which promises to be a hit. In place of the almost tailored evening wraps of last season, capes will swing dramatically from modish shoulders down to the knees or heels in voluminous folds. A winter costume made for Carole Lombard displays a white satin gown of simple silhouette, accompanied by a circular cape of the same material that falls extravagantly to the ankles and fastens under the chin in an enormous tie.

Tie Silks and Shirtings

By Mary Brook Lucas

The haberdasher's influence is seen in the new midsummer suits that make their appearance in the smartest places. Jeanne glimpsed this suit on upper Fifth avenue near the park. It is of dark blue tie silk splashed with white stars. Either blue or white accessories may be worn.

Over on Park avenue two debutantes take the morning air in very sheer silk foulard. Gray and yellow is the color scheme used in the two-piece affair. Tiny navy blue stars dot the white frock. If a coat is worn over this dress please let it be of navy pongee.

We're glad the large flowered and modernistic designs are bygones forever! This is the day for neat dots, checks and tiny fresh little field-flower patterns. Jeanne wears a brown and white tie silk blouse with a white linen skirt and accessories. A white silk shirt and striped madras skirt are cool and chic.

Since the vogue this summer is to "look clean" all kinds of fresh combinations are being used in street dresses. This frock of men's shirting printed in black and white Maltese crosses flaunts shoulder wings of black linen and a bouquet of red and yellow field flowers. Black and white accessories are correct.

Illinois May Sell Louis XIV Grant

Prairie du Rocher Commons on Mississippi Last in State.

Springfield, Ill., July 6 (A.P.).—One of the official acts of King Louis XIV of France, who died in 1715, may be nullified by a bill passed by the Illinois General Assembly.

The measure would permit the sale of the Commons at Prairie du Rocher in Randolph County. The Prairie du Rocher Commons, 6,000 acres of land overlooking the Mississippi River, were given to the village in perpetuity by the French king.

Since the Commons at two other early French settlements, Cahokia and Kaskaskia, were sold several years ago, the one at Prairie du Rocher was thought to be the last in the State which dates back to the time of the French occupation.

The Prairie du Rocher Commons have been under lease to farmers for many years. The leases now in effect were made in 1853 and do not expire until 1952.

USUAL BIDDING.

RARE indeed is the hand in which one of the players on the attacking side opens the bidding with a six-card suit headed by the four top honors and never mentions that suit again in the bidding, although the final contract is a Small Slam.

Such a hand was held recently by Mrs. Culbertson, who was my partner in a set match against Messrs. Raymond Balfe and Oswald Jacoby. The reason that this strong six-card suit was not subsequently mentioned in the bidding was that there were other and more important bids to be made by Mrs. Culbertson in reaching the best bid in the combined hands—namely, a Small Slam at hearts.

1—Of course, a very fine Opening bid of one.
2—The length of the suit justifies the Overcall.
3—This bid shows a stronger hand than it would have had had West passed. In other words, the response is free, not forced, and thus my partner can count on substantial values of one kind or another in my hand.
4—All four suits have now been bid, and the bidding still remains at the range of one.
5—A beautiful bid, laying, as it does, the groundwork for the later Slam bid, justified not only by the strength of the club suit, but also by the splendid fit in hearts.
6—An idle gesture.
7—This beautiful bid is a second link in the chain of bidding. It practically assures an eventual Slam contract; otherwise there would be no purpose in showing control of the other suit bid by the opponents. South's bid of two diamonds, by inference, guarantees support for the heart takeout.
8—Now showing the strong heart support. Note that on this hand the Four-Five Notrump Convention can not be used.
9—This bid comes almost as a matter of course.

It is apparent that in the play of the hand there is but one loser—namely, the heart Ace.

While ordinarily in reaching a Slam as strong a suit as that held by Mrs. Culbertson would certainly be rebid, the student will note that at no stage of the bidding could this bid have been made without risking that the hand be played short of Slam or that the Slam bid might be too high. To have bid four clubs over three spades would have created a bidding situation in which South might have been required to bid the Slam, which, as the cards lie, should be bid by me. I knew that the bid of two diamonds must show control of the first round of the suit. Hence, even if the heart Ace was held by the opponents, I, with my singleton, knew that a Slam was makable. While Mrs. Culbertson at no time rebid the clubs, her bidding had assured me of practically as solid a suit as she actually had.

It will be noted that, with a heart opening, a Slam can not be made at Clubs, as West can ruff the second round of the heart suit. A Slam at hearts is safe against any lead.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

If North is the Declarer at a contract of four hearts, how should he plan to play to make the contract?

Beer Tax Yields $40,726.

Columbia, S. C., July 6 (A.P.).—South Carolina's beer tax yielded $40,726 in June, W. G. Query, tax commission chairman, reported today. Beer, since its legalization April 14, has brought in $93,036 in State revenue, Mr. Query said.

The Meanderer Says

How Like a Melody Are Clothes That Have Harmony.

The Meanderer paused in her shopping tour today, and instead of the hasty bite at the counter, sat alone at a table and listened to the strains of a Strausserian waltz. She kept her eagle eye open for the chic costume, mentally noting its whys and wherefores. It occurred to her how like a melody were ladies' ensembles. Just as the blend of right notes make music, so the blend of right colors and eccessories make the costume.

Accessories—that was an idea. The Meanderer flurried forth in quest of the newest, best, and most novel. What treasure houses she found! In one shop were pancake cigarette cases with compacts to match, done in shaded enamel, ornamented with silhouetted dogs' heads in white metal. Cases, $5; compacts, $5.50.

There were dainty combs in beaded cases, some for afternoon, some for evening. Those for more formal wear were in jet beads interspersed with crystal. The others in imitation seed pearls. Such trinkets achieve fascinating effects.

Conspicuous among the sport novelties were the assortments of bracelets. There was everything from the peppermint candy to the plaid idea. Imagine Junior when mother comes home with what he imagines is a choice morsel wound coyly around her wrist. Lest any motif should be neglected, there are even the supplementary cuff bracelets to fill in with when the white linen or pique standby has failed at the crucial moment. That, thinks the Meanderer, is a detail worthy of the good Dutch housewife. If you have a print dress, be daring, insult your conservative instinct, and match up with a Roman striped, or print bracelet. Refer all objectors to the Meanderer. Her shoulders are broad, and her spirits sturdy.

Speaking of sports and novelties, don't, dear shopper, for the life of you, miss those English turf sticks. Quite jolly, really. At first glance you'd say, "Clever cane, what, no?" After a little investigating and pushing of buttons you'd say, "Well! Delightful umbrella!" And then would come the grand finale. Watch out for that equilibrium, for, lo and behold, what is this thing evolving but the most satisfactory kind of a little seat. Somebody page Houdini.

To ward off a complete English victory on this score, the German exporters have sent over some interesting novelty parasols with dachshund heads carved out of wood for the handles. And all for the bentfit of Junior are some Mickey Mouse umbrellas that are sure to call forth ecstatic shrieks. And if you're really interested in umbrellas, take a hint from the Meanderer and see those celophane models for only $4.50.

We're all convinced by now that it's a season of cotton dresses, but wait till you hear about this cotton jewelry. Unanimously—will wonders never cease? Out of compressed cotton, necklaces, bracelets, earrings are now being made. A certain shop has quite a selection offering the entire sets in combination of red, blue, black, green, yellow and white. To match the cotton jewelry are the cotton (otherwise known as "Zylo") bags. For $3 they're a wonderful buy, in that they are easily sponged off, have practically permanent wearing qualities, and combine beauty with practicality.

Probably one of the most really useful bags to be had are those with the adjustable covers. Imagine any time you are bored with the old pocketbook, all you have to do to convince the neighbors, if not yourself, that you are outfitted with something entirely new, is to put on a new cover. The bags with cover are $3. An extra cover is $1.95.

Down in North Carolina throngs of mountain folk flocked from their little cabins in the hills into the more populous regions to search for a kind of sustenance. The mill owners looked on these people and felt pity. "Take," said they, "the waste cotton fabric. Make of it what you can." These backwoods people were pressed by hunger. They looked on the cotton waste and wept. Invention sprang from his mother's loins and said to these people "I will lead the way!" These underfed mountaineers set to work, and of the waste fabric they wove bags, hundreds of bags, in hundreds of combining colors. They were put on the market, and the shoppers saw and were pleased, and bought. They are now on sale here in Washington. For $1 you may secure a stunning shopping bag, and at the same time feel that you're entitled to a Boy Scout membership on the good deed a day basis.

If you have a linen suit, be it blue, black, brown, or white, and if you feel that it needs an added finesse, take it from the Meanderer that you can't beat the ascot shaped linen scarfs in plaid and polka dots to do just that certain thing. From the looks of them it would seem that they were designed especially to embellish the particularly tailored suit. They come in brown, blue and green tones and are priced at $1. Try it out and thank the Meanderer when you hear the general applause.

Those of you who want just the right belt and no other—for belts do have a decided way of being either just right or very wrong, do they not? Take a look at those new twine belts with edgings of black, brown or green. They are particularly apropos for sports wear, designed to suit either an ensemble or one-piece dress. Somewhat more dashing are the white kid belts, striped in red. One of these, with gloves to match, insures a get-up that can't be rivaled for smartness. If you're interetsed in novelties, then see those new webbing golf belts with the inserted placket for tees, and a tiny leather change purse fitting snugly at the side.

Undoubtedly the belt designers were versatile, for they even consider the swimming belt an item deserving of more than meager attention. Their latest creation along this line is one of webbing with the nonrustable chromium buckle. Price $1.50. With an eye to the approaching fall, the Meanderer viewed with scarcely concealed delight the new metal mesh belts, woven now in countless designs to suit the tea gown or the plainer afternoon dress.

How to Get Well

By W. A. Evans.

NICOTINE POISONING.

NICOTINE as an insecticide is in fairly general use. It is regarded as perhaps the most powerful poison that can be used against insects that attack and destroy flowering plants and some crops. That it is not more widely used is principally due to the fact that it is too soluble and rain and dews wash it away.

The reason for writing about it just now is the fact that most of the plant insects against which nicotine is used are especially destructive in the first half of the summer months. Gardeners and others will suffer from its effects—in some instances knowingly, in others without suspecting the cause of the trouble.

Dr. J. M. Faulkner reports a case that illustrates several phases of nicotine poisoning:

A man sat on a bench on which some nicotine insect poison had been spilled. He felt the liquid soak through his clothing and wet a section of his skin about the size of the palm of his hand. In about 15 minutes he had an attack of nausea and faintness. So sick was he that an ambulance was called and he was taken to the hospital. There he was stripped, his clothing put in a bag. He was put to bed and given caffeine. For several hours he was threatened with death due to tobacco poisoning. By the next day he was out of danger, and a few days later he was well enough to go home. He was given his clothes bag to dress himself. He noticed that his clothing was still somewhat moist from the insecticide, recognizable by both the odor and the feel. However, he dressed and went home. One hour later he was again sick from nicotine poisoning. In this attack his condition was not so alarming, but he was quite sick and very uncomfortable. Three weeks later he had completely recovered except for a moderately bad tobacco heart. When he dressed after the second spell he avoided the pants and drawers which had soaked up the insect poison.

What Today Means

By Mary Blake.

"CANCER."

MUCH creative work should be produced on this date. People will work spontaneously and by inspiration, and labors will prove most fruitful and satisfying to the worker. It would seem wise on this date to strive for perfection in all that you do rather than to seek personal advancement or monetary gain.

The child born on this July 7 will, no doubt, have to be watched and constantly "kept after" in order that he may succeed reasonably well in his studies. His interests will lie largely along lines practical. Girls born on this date will take active interest in the duties of housekeeping and the boys will enjoy carpentering and other manual tasks.

If July 7 is the date of your birth you are quite likely a vivacious person and a great talker. You are inclined to be superficial in your attitude toward life, and your conversation is probably more of the "wise-cracking" type rather than serious in nature. However, in regard to matters on which you feel strongly, you can express yourself forcefully and convincingly. You are much inclined to toy with life and to play it for all it is worth. You will have a number of setbacks, most probably during the earlier years of your life, and as a result of suffering thus incurred you will come to see the serious side of existence.

Born on July 7 you will probably inspire great confidence in young people. You will be a good parent, and your children will always come to you for advice, even after they are grown. You will never regret the time you spend in helping others.

Film Actress Emulates Cat To Gain Beauty and Grace

Attention, ladies!

Here's your chance to be beautiful and "catty" at one and the same time in such a way that everybody will know you're beautiful and nobody will ever know you are "catty."

To do it you follow the beauty secrets of Ginger Rogers, who has just completed "Professional Sweetheart," her first picture under her new contract. Says Miss Rogers:

"I have been doing it for years. It keeps your back straight, relaxes your muscles and rests your body as no other sleeping position will do. I sleep on my 'tummy.' It promotes graceful carriage, relaxed muscles and all beauty experts agree that grace and suppleness constitute attractiveness. Many women are rated as beautiful because they are graceful, while many women, who really have beautiful faces, fail to attract attention because they are awkward and graceless."

As to the catty part of it, Miss Rogers explains that all members of the feline kingdom sleep principally on their stomachs, and that felines are the most graceful animals in the world, their movements resembling the smooth flow of a deep stream.

Radio Dial Flashes

By Robert D. Heinl.

THE newly developed "electronic mandolin," a mandolin without a sounding board, but the strings of which when played in the usual way have their vibrations picked up by sensitive magnetic oscillators and amplified through vacuum tubes like those in a radio set, so that the mandolin music issues forth enriched in depth, sweetness and volume, has just been demonstrated by its inventor, A. E. Allen, of Orange, N. J.

This new electronic mandolin is one of a large family of new musical devices being developed in Europe and America, and expected to revolutionize musical methods and technique. With the electronic mandolin, for example, the artist plays in the usual way and the notes are hardly audible in the room—yet the amplified tones issuing from the accompanying loudspeaker can be swelled to the volume of 100 or 1,000 mandolins playing simultaneously. With such responsibility devolving on the artist, new possibilities are opened up, and Stokowski has recently pointed out that new training and technique will be required of the musician to play the new electronic instruments to their full potentialities.

Two hours and 43 minutes after Jane Rogers arrived on this earth she became a member of the WMAL Breakfast Club.

Edwin Rogers, local N. B. C. announcer, is her father. The baby was born at 5 o'clock yesterday morning and at 7:43 a. m., Arthur Godfrey initiated her into the breakfast club.

CALIFORNIA Day will be observed at A Century of Progress Exposition today. There will be notable speakers. Marie Morrisey, contralto of the concert stage, will sing "California Lullaby." The ceremonies will be broadcast from the Court of States and heard here through WMAL at 3 p. m.

Police nabbed a gangster wearing a bullet-proof shirt that stopped a revolver shot at 15 feet. But, according to Ben Bernie, that wasn't a real test. They should have sent it to a Chicago laundry.

"Melodies Out of the Dark," a series heard over WMAL Fridays at 6:45 p. m. weekly, will go off the air until fall after tonight.

Tribute will be paid to the memory of the late Joseph Rosenblatt, Jewish cantor, over WMAL at 6:30 p. m. Traditional Jewish music will be played under the baton of Louis Katzman, assisted by John Pierce, tenor.

Two Washington girls who have made a success on the legitimate stage will be heard over WRC on Friday evenings at 6:15 o'clock beginning this evening. They are Marie Bowman, mezzo-soprano, one-time star of the local St. Patrick's Players and later a member of George White's "Scandals," and Evelyn Tyner, pianist, who was at one time associated with Brooke Johns.

ROBERT TROUT, local announcer, who now introduces the President of the United States to Columbia listeners each time the Chief Executive speaks, made his radio debut unexpectedly. It was when the man who read the news flashes at the old WJSV, Mount Vernon Hills, Va., didn't show up. The station manager, listening to the program at a nearby restaurant, left his dinner half eaten and rushed back to the studios to find out who owned the new and melodious voice.

"If anyone had ever told me that I had a voice people would listen to without screaming or throwing their radios out the window, I'd have laughed out loud," Trout said. "Even now, although I've grown accustomed to talking to large numbers of people at one time, I still get an inferiority complex when I realize anew that telephone operators can never understand a word I am saying, and elevator boys invariably take me right up to the roof when I've plainly said, "Second floor, please!"

Bob also told about the first network job he ever announced, a concert by the United States Army Band, during which everything went wrong.

The first time he ever announced a President of the United States, was at the annual community Christmas tree lighting, in 1931. When President Hoover pushed the button that lit the tree at the wrong time, confusion ensued, but Bob talked so long and so skillfully of other things that the radio audience never suspected anything had gone wrong. As a reward, he was assigned to the Presidential jobs permanently on the old WJSV, and later on Columbia.

THE baseball heroes, Joe Cronin and Walter Johnson, will be interviewed over WMAL at 6:15 o'clock tonight by Arthur Godfrey.

A Christian Science program is scheduled for WJSV at 5:15 o'clock.

The Northern Dramatic Company will present the second act of "Freckles" over WOL at 7:30 o'clock.

"LA GRANDE BRETECHE," a macabre tale with a tense, surprising climax, by Honore de Balzac, will inaugurate the second series of "Tales of the Titans" over WMAL at 7 o'clock.

A deserted chateau in the time of Napoleon, a pile of crumbling bricks in the carriage house and the strange disappearance of a Spanish prisoner of war—these are the elements with which the story begins, a tale equal to any modern writing, with a startling denouement of the kind that Balzac delighted in.

A Puccini aria, rarely heard on the air, "One Fine Day," from "Madame Butterfly," will be sung by Grace Moore during the variety show, with Lou Holtz and Lennie Hayton's orchestra, over WJSV at 9 p. m. Miss Moore, by the way, has a lovely voice.

The chimes which WRC and WMAL have been broadcasting for several years have been standardized. Automatic chimes which work by pushing a button have been installed in all the N. B. C. studios in Washington.

Heretofore the announcers have operated the chimes used in each of the studios, but the results have not been the same.

"PHIL" is on the air on Friday nights for an uninterrupted hour and fifteen minutes. Phil who? Well, Phil Cook, Phil Harris, Phil Baker. Try to get away from Phil if you are listening in over the WJZ network on Friday evening.

Phil Cook starts it with his one-man show at 7:45 o'clock. He holds the air for a quarter of an hour and then turns it over to Phil Harris and his orchestra. Half an hour later Harris leaves—but not Phil. He stays around, in the person of Phil Baker, the comedian, who doesn't sign off until 9: o'clock.

The male trio that sings with Phil Harris' orchestra, by the way, is a discovery of Phil's. Called the Ambassadors, after the hotel in which they first sang professionally in Los Angeles, the trio were in high school a few months ago, and Harris heard them at a school entertainment.

TOM-TOM manipulators are getting scarce in the Upper Congo and natives, not being able to do their dances except now and again, are becoming restless.

"Their chiefs have petitioned for a wireless transmitting station where one of the rare tom-tom bangers can perform before the mike," says a dispatch from Brussels.

Doctors Puzzled As Girl Eats Paint

Kingston, Pa., July 6 (A.P.).—A 2-year-old girl, whose name is kept a secret by puzzled physicians, is in a hospital because of an unusual appetite for anything painted.

Physicians said the child prefers linoleum, legs of tables and woodwork generally.

She was brought to the hospital suffering from lead poisoning. Attendants said at first she refused all normal food, and chewed off the leg of a painted doll. Physicians asserted the child's trouble was traced partially to "pica," or an abnormal appetite. They expect her ultimately to acquire a taste for an ordinary diet.

Southern Lines Pick Coordinating Group

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Representatives of the Southeastern railroads, meeting here today, named the members of their coordinating committee in accordance with the administration's new railway rehabilitation plan. These were chosen:

W. R. Cole, president, Louisville & Nashville; Fairfax Harrison, president, Southern Railway; L. A. Downs, president, Illinois Central; L. R. Powell, jr., coreceiver, Seaboard Air Line, and George B. Elliott, president, Atlantic Coast Line.

Librarian's Pay Cut Vetoed.

Springfield, Ill., July 6 (A.P.).—Gov. Horner was on record for economy, but insisted it should not be carried to extremes. He vetoed a bill today to cut 10 per cent from the $3,000 yearly salary of the State historical librarian. The governor said the salary was no more than adequate.

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York.—Personal notes off a New Yorker's cuff:

Betty Bronson, who was Peter Pan in the movies, will make her stage debut in a summer theater on Long Island.

Anne Ayres, tiny, red-haired and from Connecticut, is the newest addition to the ranks of women producers.

One of the most popular eating places with the debutante crowd is a rococo French tavern in the Fifties, where you get a six-course dinner, with wine for 50 cents. The wine, of course, is 3.2.

Muriel Robinson, artist, has moved her studio back to a cottage on Belgrade Lakes, Maine. She began her career by making color sketches of operations for study in a Canadian hospital. Now she does portraits of famous folk like Lenore Ulric, Dorothy Hall and Helen Menken.

There are eight times as many shoe shine boys on the sidewalks of New York as there were three years ago.

Strokes for Pennies.

The youngsters who swim in that fountain at Columbus Circle have evolved a new racket. They cajole pennies from bystanders and dive for them. Not a difficult feat, considering that the fountain is only three feet deep.

It must be a sign of returning prosperity with those private beach clubs on the Long Island shores making more stringent their requirements for admission. Two years ago almost anyone who had the price was given a membership.

Early morning finds the East River crowded with those commuters' yachts coming in from summer resorts up Long Island Sound. A dozen or so wealthy men will purchase a yacht together. It picks them up at their individual piers, and they bathe, dress and breakfast aboard as the fast boat speeds them to their Wall street offices.

One of the fastest of the yachts is a low slung, gray craft that cuts through the water with almost the speed of a sea sled. It was built over from a submarine chaser.

Always Misunderstood.

An automobile manufacturer out Long Island way thought he was getting a bargain when he bought at a government auction a captured rum runner. Although he redecorated it, it still looks like a rum runner. Now, every time he starts on a cruise he is stopped and searched by three or four Coast Guard cutters.

Edna Ferber was born in Kalamazoo, Mich. She was a reporter before she was 17 years old.

Otis Skinner, at 75, is still acting and in exhaustive roles.

Some Comfort.

THE greatest banker in the land appeared upon the witness stand and told a melancholy tale about the shrinkage in his kale. The gorgeous assets he had built began to shrivel up and wilt beneath depression's iron grip; each day he saw an asset skip. "To faults of judgment I must own," he said, with something like a moan; he'd bought his share of gilded bricks, just like the untaught crossroads hicks. The country's full of mourning gents who've lost twelve dollars and ten cents; their hearts are sore, their thoughts are sour, they kick themselves three times an hour. Their bad investments they recall, and lean against the wailing wall. They ask themselves, in bitter tones, why did they place their hard-earned bones, where all those bones were swept away, like dry leaves on a stormy day? Why did they buy those phoney shares, or purchase stock in Belgian hares, why did they cherish schemes unsound? And so they kick themselves around, and lie awake at night and fret, and think of bankrupt courts and debt. They should find comfort in the thought that wizards of the mart were caught, that wizards of the banking field have wounds that never will be healed. The greatest banker in the land has forty kinds of grief on hand.

Morris Presented To Belgians' King

Brussels, July 6 (A.P.).—David Hennen Morris presented his credentials to King Albert today as new American Ambassador to Belgium.

Accompanied by embassy officials, Mr. Morris proceeded to the palace in a gala coach in advance of which was an escort of mounted gendarmes. A guard of honor presented arms upon his arrival at the palace and bugles sounded a salute.

Grand Marshal Count de Lannoy presented the ambassador and his suite to the king, who chatted ten minutes with his guests and then presented them to Queen Elizabeth. Ambassador Morris returned to the embassy with the same ceremonial escort, accompanied by Gen. Duroy Deblicquy.

Pretzels Not Enough To Obey Illinois Law

Springfield, Ill., July 6 (A.P.).—Attorney General Otto Kerner today ruled holders of Illinois beer licenses actually must offer "lunches" for sale to comply with the clause of the State law that beer may be sold only in places providing "food for human consumption."

It is not enough, he said in a formal opinion, to have on hand a box of pretzels. The law prohibits the use of the word "saloon" in advertising.

PREMIUM ON

AMOCO-GAS

THE FINEST PREMIUM MOTOR FUEL ON EARTH

REDUCED 2¢* per gallon

*[And 2c per gallon CASH DISCOUNT also continued in towns where now in effect--making a combined saving of 4c per gallon]

AMOCO-GAS was developed by The American Oil Company and placed on the market almost two decades ago. It created a sensation.

It is the original premium motor fuel!

The history of motor fuels can't be written without AMOCO-GAS. It revolutionized the whole gasoline industry and marked an important step forward in automotive transportation. It made possible today's high compression motors.

AMOCO-GAS is a premium motor fuel--not a regular gasoline. And it is different from any other premium motor fuel. Its formula is our own exclusive one, employing distinctive, expensive ingredients.

There is nothing else like AMOCO-GAS. It has often been imitated, never equalled. It is in a class by itself--the aristocrat of motor fuels.

AMOCO-GAS furnishes a luxury in riding that is a real delight--a freedom from repair worries that is amazing--an extended life and use of motors that is surprising--and an economy of operation that means you pay nothing for its many extra advantages.

AMOCO-GAS is regarded as the finest motor fuel in the world--worth every cent of the 5c premium it has commanded over regular gasoline. Other premium motor fuels are considered inferior--a fact recognized even by their makers, practically none of whom has ever attempted to offer products in the same price class as AMOCO-GAS.

AMOCO-GAS has sold for more because--it costs more to make --does more--is worth much more.

NOW...we want more AMOCO-GAS users in addition to the many, many present devoted ones. Changed economic factors in industry, combined with the advantages resulting from our recent big expansion program, make it possible:

....to REDUCE the premium on AMOCO-GAS by 2c a gallon!

....without in any way changing its ingredients or famous quality! It's the same matchless AMOCO-GAS.

And so we say:

To our many AMOCO-GAS users, we're glad to pass this saving on to you.

To all others who have always wanted to use AMOCO-GAS--here's the finest motor fuel on earth now brought within the reach of all!

Fairfax Troops Plan Field Day.

Boy Scouts, their leaders and friends will gather at the Boy Scout Hall, Annandale, Va., on Saturday, for an all-day rally, to climax in a big campfire in the evening, at which program O. H. Benson, of New York City, will speak.

Dr. Bruce L. Melvin is the district commissioner of scouting in Fairfax County, and E. W. Marcellus is chairman of the county scout committee. The camp-fire program will include story telling by Walter MacPeek, of Washington.

Thomas J. Keane, national Sea Scout director, has been secured to direct a course in older boy leadership at Camp Roosevelt over the week-end of July 29 and 30. Local officials predict that about 60 scoutmasters and district commissioners will take part.

Mr. Keane, who is a national authority on programs for older boys and young men, has recently written "Lubbers Afloat," which has become a Scouting best seller.

Will see you at Franklin Park, Fourteenth and I streets, next Monday evening at 6:30 p. m. Be sure and bring your registration card—and wear your Scout uniform, if you have one. Why get together at Franklin Park? We assemble there to proceed in a group to see "Forgotten Men" as the guests of the management of the Metropolitan Theater.

What emblem are you going to earn on July 18 at Glen Echo? Minnow—Porpoise—or Whale? Ask your scoutmaster more about the details and be sure to be on deck with the gang. Remember the date—Tuesday, July 18—the Scout day at Glen Echo.

Amid the odor of fresh Stockholm tar and Manila rope the two sturdy craft of the Corinthian Yacht Club Sea Scouts hoisted sail for tidewater ports.

Leaving during the first part of this week, the junior "salts" hope to make Dahlgren their first stop. The naval proving grounds at Dahlgren, Va., have always been a welcome port for the Sea Scouts. Last year the naval officials there showed the boys throughout the reservation—the operation of the big guns to be mounted on Uncle Sam's "battle wagons"—the testing of naval armor and the efficiency of naval shells.

A liberal education is also to be received by a cruise with Sea Scouts. They visited tomato canneries, oyster-packing houses, fish fertilizer plants and other commercial ports accessible only by water.

Marine architecture and boat construction are studied and their practical application is seen at the various shipyards along the bay.

Yacht racing is seen at Gibson Island, Md., and the social connections there are of a high standard.

With one of the best cruising grounds on the Eastern Coast, namely, the Chesapeake Bay and Potomac, the Sea Scouts are sure to receive an experience which is to be envied by any real boy.—Submitted by Dick Tar, Yeoman.

Scout Troop 56, conducted by Peck Memorial Chapel, had a very interesting meeting on June 30, 1933. The entire meeting was turned over to a visitor, Mr. Norman Hicks, who explained map making. He told and explained the instruments used in map making.—Submitted by Joseph Campbell.

Troop 72 on Week Hike.

In keeping with the annual week hike idea about 16 members of Troop 72, with L. P. McCollock, scoutmaster, are camping this week in the vicinity of Chain Bridge. More elaborate details as to the cooling and sanitation systems than have ever before been tried are being planned. On this trip much stress is being placed on the camping, cooking, pioneering, public health and other outdoor merit badges along with second and first class tests. The party left on Saturday, July 1, and plan to return Saturday, July 8. No troop meetings will be held during this week.

A guest next Monday will be Maj. Gen. Friedrich von Boetticher, military attache of the Germany Embassy. We feel sure that he will enjoy his visit—and that Roosevelt Scouts will be delighted to see Gen. von Boetticher.

Court Functions at Wilson.

Thirty-one Scouts advanced in rank and merit badge work in the court of honor session held at Camp Wilson last Saturday night. Peterson, Troop 235, pathfinding; Richard Lee, Troop 235, bird study, scholarship and surveying.

Courts will be held at Camp Wilson again tomorrow night and each Saturday throughout the summer.

Eight Publishes Skillet.

The Skillet, published by Troop 8, issued No. 195 on June 30. It is a biweekly mimeographed paper. The Skillet announced that nine Troop 8 scouts, in addition to the Jamboree group, are attending summer camps all over the United States, from Maine to Connecticut. Scout Mack Butler, formerly of Troop 8, has returned from the U. S. Naval Academy for a two months' leave before embarking on a cruise early in August.

Camp Director and Scout Executive Linn C. Drake has cause to be happy. Although always happy and full of pep while directing the camp, he has a good reason for coming into Washington more often than usual—yes, it's a baby girl, not quite one week old. The baby, which first saw the light of day last Saturday, has not yet been named. Both Mrs. Drake and the baby are doing well.

Three Awards Offered by Glen Echo.

Washington Scouts are looking forward to the Boy Scout day at Glen Echo on July 18. Opportunities to qualify for any of three swimming clubs are offered. Tests for the three clubs will be held in the crystal pool. The three clubs are the Minnow, Porpoise and Whale. A swimming suit emblem will be awarded each scout who passes the required test for each club. The Minnow emblem measures 2¾ inches, the Porpoise, 3¾, and the Whale, 4¼. More details will be given for this free swim later.

Swimming Replaces Troop Meeting.

Life-saving and swimming lessons are replacing the regular troop meetings in the first district. V. E. Howard is the district leader and Mr. Hitsley is instructing the classes. The swimming meets are held each Friday in the McKinley Pool. They will continue during the summer. On June 23, 66 scouts attended the class and on June 30, 50 were present.

Troops 12, 22, 92, 95 and 98 will continue activities throughout the year.

Redskins Hike on Saturdays.

Hikes the fourth Saturday in each month are taken by the Redskin Twelfth Division. Each hike is devoted to a certain phase of scouting. On June 30 nature was the scouting subject emphasized. The July hike will stress tracking; the August, signaling, and the September some other Scout lore. The fall round-up will be held in October and November will be the time for the all-troop minstrel show. December will see a swim meet. This is but a tentative program, it was announced yesterday by W. H. McConnaughy.

Camp Wilson in Full Blast.

For Washington Scouts who find it impossible to go to Camp Roosevelt, and for those who like to camp, opportunities for all kinds of scout lore are offered at Camp Wilson, Burnt Mills, Md. A competent staff under the direction of Bill Murray is working to give Scouts a camp that will give them full scouting experience. Although an inland camp, there is swimming, with instructors and guards. A commissary is conducted by "Bill" Murray, where campers may buy their food. For those who do not want to camp in tents, excellent cabins are available with bunks and ticks. The only courts of honor held during the summer are at the two camps. Camp Wilson holds a court of honor each Saturday night at 7:30. Many D. C. Scouts have taken advantage of this opportunity to advance during the real camping and scouting season.

Scoutmasters of the third district convened in their monthly round table meeting at Camp Wilson last night. Meetings of the round table will be held monthly throughout the summer, probably at Camp Wilson. Troops of the third district will not disband for the summer and will take full opportunity of the advantages offered at Camp Wilson and Camp Roosevelt for summer camping and scouting.

79 Scouts to Attend Camp.

Troops 79 will contribute about 15 Scouts to the opening week of the third period at Camp Roosevelt. Led by their scoutmaster, Edwin L. Maschmeyer, the Scouts will learn much of handicraft, nature, and swimming. The majority of the Scouts will stay only one week, but several will remain the entire period.

Factor Return Hope Dashed; Mystery Gains

Speculator Is at Sea, Says Phone Call; New Orleans Police on Lookout.

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—The expected return of John Factor, kidnaped market plunger, failed to materialize tonight and new mystery was added to his now six-day-old absence.

At the Morrison Hotel, where a board of strategy held forth hoping to negotiate for his release an anonymous telephone call came in saying:

"Factor's already on the high seas."

Efforts to trace the call were unsuccessful, but it did much to dampen the expectancy which has been held to by Factor's friends that he would be freed within a few hours.

Leon Bleet, personal representative for Factor, regarded the call as a hoax, however, and added he placed little significance in reports that the abductors supposedly were headed for Mexico via New Orleans.

John J. Grosch, New Orleans detective chief, had detectives watching all incoming highways into the city for a large sedan. Grosch refused to divulge source of his information, but said Factor's abductors were reported headed for New Orleans.

Jerome Factor, 19-year-old son of the missing speculator, himself a kidnap victim last April, withheld comment. Bleet previously said he expected developments in the case soon and indicated he expected Factor to be returned.

Factor, who is wanted in England on charges of fleecing investors of $7,000,000, was kidnaped early last Saturday by a gang of armed men, who dragged him from Jerome's automoblie after they left a roadhouse.

Famous Finland Musician Dies.

Missionary

Mountaineers Near Forest Camps Welcome Sermons Heard There.

Reforestation camps are serving as missionary posts in some lonely mountain sections, it was reported yesterday to Robert Fechner, director of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

In some cases, where the visits of clergymen to mountain communities are few and far between, the mountaineers have asked "Can we come to the preaching over at the camp?" Services are held at the camps almost every Sunday, either by Army chaplains or by local ministers. Such outside attendance is always welcomed and does much to cement good relationship between the workers and their neighbors, it was reported.

About 15,000 Testaments have been sent to the camps, and more may be forwarded, the chief of chaplains reported.

Post-Race Schedule On Coast Abandoned

Municipal Airport, Los Angeles, July 6 (A.P.).—After repeated attempts to complete races against time in two straight-away dashes had failed, contestants and officials of the National Air Races today decided to end the post-race schedule, drawn up after completion of the regular events July 4 and make awards on previous performances.

Poor visibility, a rancher who plowed up timing wires and inability of contestants and officials to get together at an appointed hour combined to bring about the decision.

Austrian Political Victims Die.

Vienna, July 6 (A.P.).—Two victims of recent political bombings in Austria died today. One was an auxiliary policeman, among the 30 injured in the hand grenade attack at Krems, and the second was a 17-year-old Nazi who had been injured in the premature explosion in a Vienna flat of a home-made bomb.

Jobless Camp Greatly Helped By First Lady

Mrs. Roosevelt Got 300 Blankets for Women at Bear Mountain.

Mrs. Roosevelt played the Lady Bountiful to the camp for unemployed women at Bear Mountain, N. Y., established under her patronage and that of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins a month ago. She secured 300 blankets from the Army for the women's use, she said yesterday at the White House press conference.

The camp has grown to large proportions, the First Lady announced, since the age limit has been raised from 35 to 40 years and certain other restrictions revised. It is now possible for two women from the same family to enter this camp if those in charge think it advisable.

Mrs. Roosevelt has had a number of inquiries from private individuals and State relief officers in regard to camps and camp sites. These were referred to Henry Hopkins, of the Department of Labor, under whose jurisdiction the unemployed women's camps are established.

Mrs. Roosevelt expressed satisfaction over the fact that so many people have written to her approving the camps and recognizing that it is necessary to do something for women.

Letters have been forwarded to the proper authorities from the First Lady suggesting that fully equipped camps formally used by church and welfare societies for children be used in some way by the Government. Many are not operating this summer, due to lack of funds.

There are two considerations in relief work, Mrs. Roosevelt pointed out, the necessity of seeing that the children of the Nation do not grow up undernourished and that the family self-respect is preserved. Many parents pay their rent and preserve their self-respect and let the children go without food.

Power & Light Pays Dividends At High Rates

42.61 Per Cent Declared in 1932 on Common, Hearings Reveal.

Albany, N. Y., July 6 (A.P.).—The New York Power & Light Corporation, one of the largest upstate utilities, declared dividends of 42.61 per cent on its common stock in 1932, the public service commission revealed today.

Dividend figures for the last six years were introduced in evidence at the latest of a series of public hearings called by the commission to find out whether "the utilities have been bearing their fair share of the depression" and if lower rates shoud be ordered.

Walter J. Fitzpatrick, chief of counsel to the commission, said that since 1927, the year in which the company was incorporated, it had reported dividends on the stated value of common stock as follows: 1927, 8 per cent; 1928, 31.83 per cent; 1929, 33.72 per cent; 1930, 35.22 per cent; 1931, 40.84 per cent; 1932, 42.61 per cent.

Hides—A well sustained demand for finished leather products is helping to preserve a firm tone in the spot market, although no important transactions have been reported in the last few days.

Tin—The whole world's visible supply declined 2,100 tons in June to 39,684 tons, which trade authorities describe as the most favorable statistical position for many months.

Railroad Bonds Push Prices to New High Level

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Secondary railroad loans staged a rather spectacular advance today as further reports of rising traffic revenues indicated many of the companies were rapidly transforming deficits into profits.

Issues of a number of the recently forlorn transportation systems were turned over in large volume as a renewal of speculative enthusiasm brought a rush of buyers to the low-priced groups.

The utilities and industrials were firm, but lagged considerably behind the speeding rails.

Record Busy Session.

It was the busiest session since May 10, with sales totaling $23,014,000, par value.

The average for 60 domestic corporate bonds advanced seven-tenths of a point to another new 1933 high at 80.7.

Among the rail gainers of 1 to 6 or more points, were some issues of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Canadian National, Central of Georgia, Chesapeake Corporation, Chicago & Northwestern, Rock Island, Denver & Rio Grande, Erie, Illinois Central, International Great Northern, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Nickel Plate, Frisco, Seaboard Airline, Southern Pacific, Southern, Union Pacific and Wabash.

Utilities and Industrials.

The better utilities and industrials, with advances of 1 to around 2 points, included American & Foreign Power, Colorado Industrial, Dodge Bros., General Steel Castings, Hudson Coal, International Paper, National Dairy, Paramount-Publix, Texas Corporation, and Utilities Power & Light.

Leading foreign obligations were in demand, with municipal loans of Bordeaux, Lyons and Marseilles up 7 to 9 points. Bonds of Denmark, Dutch East Indies, Germany, Japan, Sao Paulo, and Great Britain advanced around 1 to 2. The Argentines, Australians, Austrians and Brazilians were somewhat heavy.

Stocks Rise to Peaks In Speculative Buying

Generous Business News Aids Advance of 2.4 Points; Rail Issues Lead Buoyancy; Sales Up to 6,574,220 Shares.

Speculation for the rise in stocks became ardent in the last hour, when industrials, which had ignored strong rail and utility sections, got up a good head of steam. The net average gain of 2.4 points put the Standard Statistics-Associated Press composite at 94.1, another new high. Sales reached the sizeable total of 6,574,220 shares.

Stock exchange traders read a generous budget of favorable business news, and also found that the trend of commodities was helpful to equities. Corn raced to new high records for the season, pulling wheat after it. Cotton closed $1.10 to $1.30 a bale higher.

Railroad shares were particularly buoyant. Buyers undoubtedly were impressed by the sharp lift in loadings last week, as compared with a year ago, an increase which, on the basis of reports to date, may amount to nearly 30 per cent when final returns are in at the week-end. Pennsylvania's strong showing brought a swift rise of more than 2 points in that system's stock; New York Central did as well, while Great Northern and Northern Pacific were stronger, the latter gaining 4.

Tobaccos, steels and oils drew liberal followings on the late upturn, although by that time it was rather difficult to designate the strongest group. Utilities made their best bid in the morning. Farm implements and motors finished strongly.

Gains in active leaders ranged from 1 to nearly 6 points, U. S. Steel, Du Pont, Harvester, American Tobacco B, Texas Corporation, R. J. Reynolds B, United Aircraft, Caterpillar Tractor, and International Cement appreciated 2 to 3. Many rails were up 1 to 2, while in the same range fell American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, American Power & Light, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, Westinghouse, American Can, General Motors, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck. Case jumped 5¾ net.

The market's strongest demonstration came after Wall street had learned that the Economic Conference was to be continued with contentious monetary and tariff questions excluded. Though many in the financial community were doubtless pleased by this news, assurances that this country was prepared to go ahead with its own recovery program regardless of success or failure at London seemed to exert considerable weight on speculative sentiment.

Midweek trade statistics showed plainly that improvement was continuing without abatement. Steel production, Iron Age said, has risen to 56 per cent of capacity, up 3 percentage points from a week ago, and demand for the industry's products is "steadily becoming more diversified." Electric power output last week, up 13.7 per cent from the 1932 period, made its best comparative gain of the long strings of advances. Central and Southern geographical divisions showed up especially well.

Government security purchases by the 12 reserve banks were confined to a total of $20,000,000 in the week ended Wednesday, bringing the portfolio close to $2,000,000,000. Gold reserves of the system rose more than $5,000,000, while member bank discounts dropped $9,000,000 in the period covering the month-end.

Total loans of New York City members rose $54,000,000, but they sold $30,000,000 of investments, virtually all of which was in United States Government securities.

Pennsylvania Railroad Car Loadings Increase

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Car loadings of the Pennsylvania Railroad system last week totaled 102,019 cars, compared with 77,355 for the same period of 1932. In the week ended June 24 traffic aggregated 97,513 cars.

Loadings of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy last week totaled 20,574 cars, against 20,244 in the previous week and 16,544 a year ago.

Curb Captures Higher Ground InFinal Dealing

Industrial Leaders Move Narrowly; Sales Up to 802,000 Shares.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—After a slow and uncertain beginning the curb market braced itself on the late dealings and closed with many gains, ranging from fractions to more than 2 points.

A number of the industrial leaders moved within narrow limits throughout the session. Aluminum Co. of America and Swift & Co. closed a shade lower. Distillery issues ruled mainly unchanged, while mining shares finished steady to fractionally higher.

Oils were in good demand. Advances of 1 to more than 2 points were recorded in Humble, Standard Oil of Ohio, South Penn Oil and Standard of Kentucky. Similar gains among utilities were shown in Electric Bond & Share, Columbia Gas & Electric preferred, and Commonwealth Edison. American Gas & Electric ended with a gain of 2 points, but substantially below its high.

Singer Manufacturing soared 8 points on a small transfer, while Parker Rustproof, Sherwin Williams and Colt's Firearms closed substantially higher. Transfer approximated 802,000 shares, compared to 645,000 on Wednesday.

U. S. Dollars Drop In Closing Trading

Pound Jumps to $4.56½; Francs and Guilders Join Climb.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—After displaying a steadier tone most of today in foreign exchange markets, the American dollar again turned sharply downward. The British pound sterling was off around 3 cents at one time from its previous closing rate. A rush of buyers in the late afternoon, however, caused the price of this currency to soar to another record post-gold standard high at $4.56½ for cables, a net gain of 6½ cents.

European gold exchanges, also holding to a narrow range in early trading, joined the pound in the final upswing. French francs, down to around 5.26 cents in the morning, came back to 5.38 for a gain of 1-10 of a cent. Dutch guilders, from a low of around 53.97 cents, spurted to 55¼ cents for an advance of 1¼ cents. Belgian belgas and Swiss francs showed recoveries of about ½ a cent each and German marks and the Scandinavians gained about 2-5 of a cent each. Canadian dollars were unchanged and Far Eastern funds were fractionally higher.

Further weakness in the dollar, which is now valued at around 73 cents in terms of gold exchanges, was aided by some dealers partly to the apparent death of stabilization measures at the London conference and to reports from Washington that the administration intended to proceed with plans for a "managed currency" with additional depreciation probable.

Higher Oil Cheers Midcontinent Area

Price Up to 85 Cents as Drive for Dollar Is Pushed.

Tulsa, Okla., July 6 (A.P.).—Fresh hope for an area that has languished for months under low prices for crude oil—a chief source of State revenue and private income—grew today in the Midcontinent area under the impetus of the second substantial price increase in three weeks. On a basis of 2,000,000 barrels daily from the Midcontinent and an average price advance of 25 cents, the new price structure means $15,000,000 additional monthly income to producers.

Effective this morning many companies began paying 85 cents a barrel top price in the northern half of the area, a flat price of 75 cents in east Texas and on an advanced scale to 63 cents and 73 cents in the two Panhandle Texas districts. Other purchasers, large and small, were expected to meet the increase today and tomorrow.

Hand in hand with the crude advance came a strong refinery market, with sellers virtually dictating their terms. Gasoline yesterday morning were 3⅛ cents a gallon for the low grade, but by closing time none was available under 4 cents and marketers were asking 4½ cents as offices opened today. Eastern prices also responded, Pennsylvania grades going 10-and 13 cents a barrel higher, with the Bradford Alleghany top at $1.70 and Ohio prices going up 30 to 33 cents, crossing the dollar a barrel mark.

Production Line Rises On Charts of Recovery

(Associated Press.)

The "production" line on the Commerce Department's domestic recovery charts mounted steadily over adverse seasonal influences at the start of the present month. The employment and pay roll lines tilted less sharply.

Pushing the first of these indicators upward were increases in the turning out of steel ingots, automobiles, electric power, lumber and a number of other industries. For both May and June, the department's statisticians said production was "considerably higher" than in 1932, and in June reached the highest level since the middle of 1931.

Speedier Stock Ticker Is Sought by Exchange

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Clamor for a speedier New York Stock Exchange ticker has risen to a shrill pitch since the advent of the inflation bull market.

The present ticker, installed in September, 1930, is considerably faster than the instrument it displaced, but is nevertheless inadequate for the prompt reporting of transactions in five and six million share days, according to its critics. The ticker system operates at a printing speed of 500 characters per minute.

National Bank To Be 61 Years Old on July 24

Second Institution Recalls Its Long History in Active Capital Business.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Second National Bank will reach its sixty-first aniversary this month. This well known financial institution was organized July 24, 1872, and formally opened for business September 11, of that year. Its original board was composed of John C. McKelden, James L. Barbour, Thomas L. Tullock, George W. Balloch, W. W. Burdette, G. F. Gulick, Francis H. Smith, Lewis Clephane, Thomas L. Hume, N. B. Fugitt and John O. Evans. Mr. McKelden was its original president and D. S. Eaton its first cashier.

Later, its uptown office at 1333 G street northwest was erected and in 1910 its downtown office was remodeled.

All Directors Reelected.

At the last annual meeting of the stockholders of the bank, January 10, 1933, all of its directors at that time were reelected as follows: Carl J. Bergmann, Edward F. Colladay, Victor B. Deyber, Fred Drew, George M. Emmerich, William M. Hannay, A. F. Jorss, Frederick W. Mackenzie, W. W. Marlow, A. H. Plugge, Samuel J. Prescott, Jacob Scharf, A. J. Somerville, W. R. Winslow, and William B. Wolf.

At the last meeting of organization of the bank's directorate, held January 11, 1933, the following officers were reelected: Victor B. Deyber, president; William M. Hannay and Jacob Scharf, vice presidents; Edward F. Colladay, trust officer and counsel; William B. Wolf, assistant trust officer; George M. Emmerich, secretary of the board; W. W. Marlow, cashier; J. K. Seyboth, Fred S. Beyer, Joseph R. Fitzpatrick, Gerald E. Keene, Steuart S. Ogilvie, assistant cashiers.

Capital Bank Clearings.

Local bank clearings have ascended steadily through the last four months of 1933, records of the Washington (D. C.) Clearing House Association reveal.

Local clearings for the first half of 1933 compare with the corresponding period in 1932 as follows, according to the complete records kept by the clearing house association:

February	61,012,252	80,807,544
March	32,644,947	89,616,463
April	38,960,517	89,654,223
June	56,487,657	85,449,660

Local bank clearings in the first six months of 1932 totaled more than $302,125,862.63, while in the corresponding six months last year they amounted to $518,877,123.

The foregoing table shows a steady advance in local clearings since March, when the low point was caused by poor business conditions, but more particularly because all the banks were closed during the moratorium and no checks could be cleared during that time.

The rise during the past four months is expected to continue during the remainder of the year. Economic and trade experts expect that the summer lull this year will be much less than seasonal. In that case, clearings will reflect a smaller hot-weather lull than usual.

The most important factor of all in the probable further improvement in the District of Columbia bank clearings, however, is the expected reopening of eight or ten of Washington's closed banks. When these banks again throw open their doors to unrestricted banking business, clearings will be first to reflect the quickened business life in the city. These released funds, added to the checks already in circulation, should greatly enhance the gain in clearings now being noted each month.

Wheat Climbs As Corn Leads Grain Markets

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—Corn soared 3 cents a bushel today to above all peaks touched in recent years, and finished buoyant at almost the day's top figures.

Persistent speculative buying not only took corn aloft, but also imparted surprising vigor to other grains. Decided enlargement of shipping demand for corn was a stimulating factor, adding to the effect of reports of increased damage to crops by drought, heat and chinch bugs.

Corn closed strong, 2½ to 2¾ cents higher than yesterday's finish; wheat, ⅜ to 1¼ up; oats, ⅛ to ½ advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 15 cents.

Rise Begins Early.

Despite heavy profit-taking because of suggestions of rain over the corn belt, corn prices began to rush up soon after trading started. The new gains were on top of 4 cents rise scored yesterday.

This circumstance and other features of the market inclined many traders to belief in gossip current that a prominent Chicago operator and an Eastern speculator recently active in rye were accumulating corn on every slight reaction.

Much of the selling of corn on new advances today was due to the fact that both corn and wheat had risen to about 12 cents a bushel from last week's lows, and that many observers considered the two markets overstrained.

Damage to Corn.

On the other hand, official reports of drought emphasized irreparable damage to corn, especially in the Southwest. Trade advices continued to dwell on ravages of chinch bugs in Illinois, Iowa and Missouri.

Wheat derived independent strength from word of augmented damage to the spring crop, with indications that recent estimates of yields Northwest would be curtailed. Oats duplicated wheat action. Provisions were responsive to upturns of hog values and of grains.

Closing indemnities: Wheat, July, 95½ bids; September, 98⅛-¼, 105; December, 100⅝-108; May, 104½-⅝.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Cotton rose more than $1 a bale on a fairly large volume of trading today. After selling off to 10.31 early, October advanced to 10.65, or 27 points net higher, and closed at 10.63, with the general market closing very steady at net advances of 22 to 26 points.

Covering Aids Demand.

Reports of showers at several points in Northwest Texas may have encouraged a little selling, but some traders thought the weekly report of the Weather Bureau rather less favorable than expected.

Drop of Dollar Hits Americans Living in Paris

United States Enterprises in France Menaced by Losses.

Paris, July 6 (A.P.).—The American dollar advanced 10 centimes in the Paris market today to close officially at 18.88 francs to the dollar (approximately 5.30 cents to the franc) in quiet trading.

The closing price Wednesday was 18.78 francs to the dollar (5.32½ cents to the franc.)

Meanwhile, the American consulate here estimated that 1,500 Americans living in Paris have returned to the United States since January 1, due to the fall of the dollar and economic conditions. Fears were expressed in other quarters that some American institutions in France might be threatened by cuts in income.

Morris M. Ennis, treasurer of the Board of Foreign Missions, announced that all activities of the Methodist Episcopal Church in France, with the exception of the memorial at Chateau Thierry, will be suspended August 1. The institutions concerned are a community center, five churches and three schools.

A census of the American consulate showed there were 13,463 Americans in Paris at the beginning of the year. Registrations at the consulate indicated a 15 per cent drop in American tourist business for April, May and June in comparison with last year.

Some American businesses were reducing their staffs as much as one-third. An American aid society reported 121 persons had been returned to the United States since the first of the year and that 100 others were booked. These figures were said to be approximately twice those of a year ago.

Rains Improving Crop Conditions

(Associated Press.)

The Weather Bureau in its weekly crop review said yesterday rain in many localities during the past week improved crop conditions, but that both small grains and corn in many sections still needed moisture badly with some sections of the cotton belt also unusually dry.

Winter grain crops in the northern great plains have continued to ripen prematurely but in the Pacific Northwest the weather was "very favorable" at a critical stage in growth, the bureau said.

Corn was benefited by showers in the northern part of the belt with only local relief in the lower Ohio Valley and from Mississippi and Nebraska southward. A number of counties in west central and south central Iowa continued to be dry. The bureau rated corn in Ohio as satisfactory to very good, with some improvement in the northern parts of Indiana and Illinois, but a less favorable outlook in the southern portions of these States and in Kentucky. In Oklahoma the dry hot weather was said to have burned much corn beyond recovery.

G. H. Cox Sees American Help For Cuba Soon

Journalist Informs G.W.U. Conference Mediation Has Started.

An American-devised program to assist Cuba out of her present difficulties soon will be put into effect, George H. Cox, newspaper correspondent, told the conference on Hispanic-American affairs yesterday at George Washington University.

The plan will deal with the economic, social, financial and political rehabilitation of Cuba, he said.

Sumner Welles, American Ambassador to Cuba, has been accepted as mediator by President Machado, and various Cuban political factions, to settle their grievances, Mr. Cox pointed out. He said that President Machado already has agreed to concede to some of the requests of the revolutionary group.

He said that most of Cuba's troubles are due to "each administration carrying forward the mistakes of former chief executives until the inheritance has become too troublesome to throw off without American assistance."

Contrary to the optimistic picture painted by Mr. Cox, Dr. Herminio Portell Vila, Cuban scholar, on Wednesday pictured Cuba as an immense American factory in which constitutional life and political decency is not likely to succeed.

A Guggenheim fellow, and formerly a member of the faculty of the University of Havana, Dr. Vila stated that Cuba is now an easy prey for ambitious tyrants supported by Cuban rascality and American capitalism.

A utilities concern controlled by J. P. Morgan, a sugar company controlled by the National City Bank of New York, and financial interests of the Chase National Bank now present "a new and victorious force of American capitalism in Cuba," Dr. Vila charged.

Adults' Education Termed Next Goal

Chcago, July 6 (A.P.).—Adult education was termed the next "great forward step" in the National Education Association's report on the social-economic goals of American schools.

The report was read at the association's convention today by Fred J. Kelly, of the United States Office of Education.

It listed its aims for American education: Developing students' minds and bodies, giving them security from disease, accidents, and enemies; participation in an evolving culture; introducing the students to satisfying occupations; developing "active, flexible personalities;" securing economic and mental security, freedom, equality of opportunity and fair play.

State Board to Aid Ceramics Museum

Richmond, Va., July 6 (A.P.).—A State commission of fifteen citizens was named today by Gov. Pollard to cooperate in plans for the establishment of a National Museum of Ceramic Arts, on the site of the first industrial plant in English-speaking America, established in 1608 near Jamestown. The commission was asked to hold an organization meeting here July 10.

Gov. Pollard announced that at the meeting Walter J. Sparks, Richmond collector, will present the plan which contemplates an initial development to cost at least $200,000 to be financed by private industry interested in the development of glass making, ceramics and allied industrial arts.

Rezoning Is Advocated In New Printing Code

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—The New York Employing Printers Association today approved a tentative code governing the printing industry, which will be submitted to the national meeting of the industry at Chicago July 13 and 14.

The code calls for a 40-hour week and a minimum wage for various departments, to be determined by the general conference and program committee at Chicago. It recommends that the country be divided into 12 zones similar to the Federal Reserve districts instead of 20 zones, as is the United Typothetae's present arrangement.

Tainted Ham Makes 7 Maryland Visitors Ill

Hagerstown, Md., July 6.—En route to their homes here from Buckroe Beach, Va., where they had spent the Fourth, seven persons were made dangerously ill from tainted ham and two are still in a serious condition. They were taken ill in Washington, D. C., and were forced to call a physician at Rockville, where they have been confined since.

They are Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mowen and daughters, Naomi and Gladys; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Night and Mrs. Walter Mowen.

Miss Duffy Named Head Of Catholic Daughters

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 6 (A.P.).—Miss Mary C. Duffy, of Newark, N. J., was elected supreme regent of the Catholic Daughters of America at the closing session of the fifteenth biennial convention here today.

Young Bandits Get $8 From Girl Hitch-Hiker

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., July 6.—En route from Washington to her home in Indianapolis, Ind., Dorothy McNelly, 18, hitch-hiker, was held up by two youths who gave her a lift and robbed her of $8 in cash and a revolver.

She leaped from the machine at Clear Spring and notified the police. The young bandits escaped.

Pinchots to Fight Sweatshop to End

Lansdale, Pa., July 7 (A.P.).—Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot today pledged herself and her husband, Pennsylvania's Governor, to a fight to the finish against sweatshops.

"I shall never rest—and Mr. Pinchot is with me—until every sweatshop is driven out of America," she told 1,500 striking hosiery workers after she marched in their picket lines at the Dexdale and Interstate mills.

"The Government owes you unemployment insurance and old age pensions," she continued. "I am in this fight to help you win your rights because I am an American."

Recently Mrs. Pinchot has been active throughout the State in behalf of mill workers. She marched in picket lines during a strike in Reading, and later went to Allentown where another strike was in progress.

Java Weather Claimed Better Than District's

Dr. H. Boschma, Visiting Scientist, Says Laundry Prices Lower, Too.

Washington's weather is remindful of Java's, only it is more comfortable there, said Dr. H. Boschma, eminent European scientist, before his departure yesterday for New York en route to his native Holland.

Dr. Boschma, professor of zoology at the University of Leiden, is concluding his third visit to the United States. His career as a student of marine life—he specializes in marine invertebrates—has taken him to all corners of the earth. Washington, he conceded, is one of the most pleasant, even though its weather must take second place to Java's.

The professor, whose youth belies his years as scholar and teacher, traveled more than 7,000 miles to attend the Pacific Science Congress at Vancouver and Victoria, B. C., last month as one of three delegates representing the Dutch East Indies. He is returning via Washington, where he visited many friends. He studied parasites of crustaceans at the National Museum here and will examine specimens at New York, Boston and Woods Hole, Mass., before sailing July 15.

He had warm praise for the zoo here but expressed surprise at some of the "outmoded" buildings.

Dr. Boschma first visited America in 1924, as a student of the Netherlands-American Foundation. His next trip, the following year, was on a fellowship of the International Education Board. He still holds a grievance against the customs officer who, when he was arriving in 1925, made him pay $30 duty on a microscope because the doctor intended to give no lectures here.

In 1922 Dr. Boschma went to the Kei Islands, near New Guinea, with the Mortenson expedition and passed a year and a half, between his second and third trips to the United States, as biologist with the Snelleus Oceanographic expedition in the East Indian Archipelago.

$100,000 Suit Filed Against Culbertson

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Shepard Barclay today sued Ely Culbertson for $100,000 on the ground of libel. He averred that in a recent article in his magazine Culbertson, under the pseudonym of "G. M. C.," had defamed him in criticisms of omission of Culbertson's name from Barclay's annual ranking of the best ten contract players. "G. M. C.," said Barclay, "means 'Great Man Culbertson.'"

William J. Huske, acting for Mr. Culbertson, who is abroad, commented that the article was not libelous and that Mr. Barclay, in assuming to rank players, had laid his qualifications open to question.

Babe Ruth's Homer Is Feature as American League Stars Win, 4-2

This Morning

By Shirley L. Povich.

CHRISTOPHER THEOPHILUS, known to the wrestling trade as Jim Londos, champeen of the Londos heavyweight circuit, will tell you that a good boxer has no business in the ring with a good wrestler in a mixed bout.

Mr. Theophilus, who paused in Washington last night long enough to let Ray Steele play around with his championship bauble a while at Griffith Stadium before tossing it into competition in other towns, opines that Primo Carnera, for example, wouldn't last as long against a good wrestler as the proverbial snowball would last in Key West.

In rather perfect English, Mr. Londos, nee Theophilus, tells us that Carnera would be a palooka in the wrestling ring, a set-up for any good wrestler, and would be on the mat so quickly that he'd think the canvas upped and socked him.

Down in a Minute.

"I'd have him down in a minute," said Londos. "A boxer doesn't know how to protect himself from the waist down. That's where he'd lose. From the waist up, he might give me trouble, but I'd get him down below.

"The wrestler learns how to protect every part of his body, his head, his shoulders, his waist, his legs and his toes. Every section is vulnerable when you're out there on the mat. The ordinary wrestler is much better developed than the ordinary boxer, and unless he can exert strength from all his muscles, he has no business in the wrestling game.

Londos Stops Steele in 69 Minutes

Challenger Forces Foe to Crawl to Ropes on Three Occasions.

By Frank H. Young.

AS far as the District of Columbia is concerned, Jim Londos is still the mat champion of the universe, but the largest rassle crowd of the local season, numbering close to 10,000, is willing to make affidavit that Ray Steel gave the champ his toughest battle here.

In his dressing room before the bout, Londos remarked that all he wanted to be was "just a little better than his opponent"—and that is all that he was last night. The end came after 69 minutes of rough work, tortuous holds and grotesque face-making. It looked as though both were shooting the works and, if they were only fooling, then Clark Gable, Walter Huston, Bob Montgomery and the like are the rawest of novices in the Thespian art.

An airplane spin, which sent Steele over the ropes and almost knocked him out when he landed, was the decisive factor. When Ray climbed back into the ring, it was just a formality for Londos to toss him to the mat and flop on him.

Londos Does Lots of Crying.

Londos did more crying than usual, rode his bicycle for miles during the bout, and complained to Referee Ben Paul, imported from Philadelphia, when his foe took little rides on his own bike on several occasions. But Londos also gave the lie to tales of his being all in because of so much hard and steady

Hagen Leads; Ed Dudley Follows

Sir Walter's 140 Gives One-Stroke Margin Over Georgian.

Gene Sarazen Has 145; 10 Americans Shoot Par or Better.

By Frank H. King.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 6 (A.P.).—Despite a succession of blistering attacks on par and his lead, Walter Hagen, of Detroit, 40-year-old American veteran of the golfing wars, kept in front of field today, at the halfway mark of the British open championship, with figures of 68—72—140 and a one-stroke margin over his big American rival, Ed Dudley, with 70—71—141 for 36 holes.

"The Haig," as much a favorite of the Scotch galleries as any Briton and now seeking to capture his fifth British open crown, was as steady as a rock during his second round.

Gene Sarazen, out in a dazzling 33, took three shots to get out of the "hill bunker" on the short eleventh hole, carding a six. He took 40 strokes altogether over the last nine for a 73 and a total of 145.

Sarazen Takes Six.

The question as to whether Sarazen took three or four blows in the sand trap on his "waterloo" hole became so acute that it was brought to the attention of the championship committee, which ruled that three was correct, confirming the champion's six, and stated there was no reflection on the American because of the rumors of a miscount which gained widespread attention in the galleries.

Altogether during the day, ten Americans shot par golf or better under ideal scoring conditions, but Abe Mitchell, the 46-year-old private golfing tutor to Samuel Ryder, contributed to a strong British rally with a sensational 68, five under par, for a total of 142.

Mitchell's great round, 33 out and 35 in, looked like a certain 67 until he took his only five on the par-four home hole. It gave him a tie for third place, two strokes behind the leader, with young Fred Robertson, the British "dark horse" of the tournament, who has only been

Defeat Handed Helen Jacobs in Tennis

WIMBLEDON, England, July 6 (A.P.).—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody moved serenely along toward her sixth Wimbledon singles title today, but the prospect of an All-American final in the famous tennis championships was removed as Helen Jacobs, her fellow townsman from Berkeley, Calif., went down before Dorothy Round in the semifinals.

Mrs. Moody, playing uninspired but effective tennis, defeated Hilda Krahwinkel, ranking German star, 6—4, 6—3, in the first semifinal, but Miss Jacobs then was eliminated by Miss Round, second ranking English player, in an endurance contest, 4—6, 6—4, 6—2.

Of the two matches that between the American champion and Miss Round was the most dramatic, with the English girl pulling through to victory largely on greater stamina.

Four Straight Games.

Playing in blistering heat late in the afternoon, they were both exhausted as they entered the final set, but Miss Round found a reserve of energy on which to draw, Miss Jacobs faltering to let the English

Play of Cronin at Chicago Brilliant

Special to The Washington Post.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 6.—The old theory that it takes practice to perfect team-play took a slap between the eyes today when the star actors of the American and National Leagues showed themselves as two distinctive combinations.

The ragged work that might have been expected didn't appear. Instead, there was perfect coordination in defensive play, which is about the only place it can be revealed. If this was true of the Nationals, it was doubly true of the victorious American League outfit.

The spectacle proved that a defensive star in any one position remains a defensive star even when lined up alongside of strangers. They fitted together as well as if they had been pals all summer.

In the first inning it looked as though the game was to be all-Cronin. The Washington manager brought the fans to their feet, when, after throwing out the first two batters, he ran over and made

Pep Features 2-Hour Nat Workout

(Sports Editor of The Post.)

UNDER the critical eye of Dave Harris, self-appointed acting manager in the absence of Joe Cronin, the Nats yesterday climbed back into their uniforms for a 2-hour workout and flung the ball about with a zest inspired by the vision of a "cut" of a world series gate.

The boys were supposed to be resting from the rigors of their late Western trip and their New York celebration, but under orders from Cronin they are working at Griffith Stadium with an eye to keeping their fine competitive edge.

There is much more serious league business at hand, starting tomorrow with a double-header against the Indians, first of the invading Western clubs, on which occasion the Nats will try to make Walter Johnson Day a complete failure for Cleveland.

Harris Puts Harris in Charge.

For the first time in his life, baseball or domestic, Dave Harris had some authority yesterday. He was appointed acting manager by Dave Harris at Dave Harris' suggestion and vetoed the veto of the rest of the squad. Striking his best managerial pose, Dave barked out the orders yesterday, even though they fell on deaf ears.

Joe Kuhel was knocking the ball to all corners of the lot against the assortment of the batting practice pitchers. With his one hit in the July 4 double-header still rankling in his craw, in addition to his four consecutive whiffs, Kuhel announced that he was hitting until 2 o'clock. It was then noon.

The Nats, from top to bottom, attacked the pitchers yesterday as if their team batting average of .308 was a myth. They're still hungry

Stars of Stars.

Stars of stars in yesterday's American League-National League game and what they did:

Babe Ruth, Yankees—Hit home run in third inning with Charley Gehringer, of Detroit, on base, to furnish winning punch, singled in fifth and saved the game with a great catch of Chick Hafey's long drive against the right-field wall, struck out twice.

Lonnie Warneke, Cubs—Scored first run for National Leaguers in sixth inning after tripling to right, scattered six hits over four innings and allowed but one run. Struck out two, walked none.

Lefty Grove, Athletics—Relieved Alvin Crowder and halted National threat with three-hit ball over final three innings, struck out three, walked none.

Frankie Frisch, Cardinals—Starred afield and hit home run and single.

Vernon Gomez, Yankees—Pitched shutout ball for first three innings, didn't allow a runner to pass second, and drove in first American League run with a single in second inning.

By Paul Mickelson.

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—Out of the shooting stars of baseball's big dream game blazed the mighty war club of the one and only Babe Ruth today to hoist the American League to a spectacular 4-2 triumph over the National League in the first all-star game in the majors' history.

Before 49,000 fans that jammed Comiskey Park to see the stars of stars in action, the aging Sultan of Swat strode to the plate in the third inning bristling with anger because of his strikeout in his first appearance, and smote one of Bill Hallahan's looping slants into the lower right-field grand stand seats. The blow, a line drive that every one knew was a homer as soon as it left the Babe's bat, came with Charley Gehringer of Detroit on base and clinched the game.

Stars Provide Thrills.

Baseball's greatest single panorama of stars, hand-picked aces of each league, came for baseball's big show in the back yard of Chicago's White Sox, to provide thrills such as Lonnie Warneke's relief pitching and hitting, Frankie Frisch's home run, great catches and hard drives.

But Babe was the biggest showman of them all. His home run specially won the game, but to top it all off he raced back against the right-field wall to haul down a drive by Chick Hafey in the eighth to save the battle. It was a remarkable catch of a ball labeled as a triple with Frisch on first racing for home. Ruth departed from the battle ground after that, and the throng, excited and roaring, thundered a big ovation to the greatest slugger of them all.

As Ruth's long range hit won the game and his great catch saved it, none of the stars even came close to matching him as the hero of the day, but Warneke ranked second. The pride of the Ozarks relieved Hallahan in the third inning, halted a rally by forcing Al Simmons of the White Sox into a double play, and scored the first run for his mates after slamming a triple to right that Ruth lunged for and missed.

Warneke Muffles Gun.

Warneke allowed six hits and one run in four innings to muffle the big American League guns. Then there were Lefty Grove, ace southpaw of the Athletics, and Carl Hubbell of the New York Giants, who received big ovations for their relief pitching. In three innings, Grove, successor to Alvin Crowder of Washington, who allowed three hits and two runs in three innings, allowed but three hits. Hubbell yielded but one hit in two innings, but the damage had been done.

As 60-year-old John McGraw, lured out of retirement to manage the first all-star National League team, and stately 71-year-old Connie Mack, directed the fire of the Americans, the battle raged on even terms in the first inning except for Hallahan's wildness.

Whitney's Halcyon Wins Arlington Feature Race Under Coucci's Rousing Ride

Rehoboth Up to Finish Second

Chinese Empress Cops Feature at Latonia; Leads From Start.

CHICAGO, July 6 (A.P.).—Halcyon, owned by C. V. Whitney, of New York, won the Brookfield Purse, run as the sixth race at Arlington Park today, by a length and a half. Rehoboth came fast in the stretch to be second. Action was third.

The race at a mile was run in 1:37 2-5 before a crowd of some 6,000 fans. The winner paid $7.32 in the $2 mutuels.

Chinese Empress Scores.

Latonia, Ky., July 6 (A.P.).—The Bosque Bonita Purse, a 5½-furlong allowance for juvenile fillies which featured today's well-balanced program, proved little more than a gallop for Chinese Empress, from the stable of Max Hirsch. The victory marked the second of the meeting for the daughter of Kai-Sang and Peerless.

Chinese Empress cut out her own pace from the flag fall and, although challenged strongly in the last 50 yards by Betty Wee, had enough left to distance the R. H. Anderson miss by an open length. The latter closed with a belated rush to overtake the tiring Occult, property of C. V. Whitney. Occult forced the early pace, but was no match for the first two horses.

Chinese Empress covered the 5½ furlongs in the fine time of 1:07 1-5. Five accepted the issue and Chinese Empress was an odds-on favorite, paying $3.90 in the $2 mutuels.

A HUNDRED people can be—and, in fact, have been—comfortably seated to lunch at the same time beneath the giant rosebush that grows in the patio of the Arcade Hotel, Tombstone, Ariz. More than 7,000 bouquets of a dozen flowers each might be picked from its branches at once—and still leave a few thousand roses.

This giant rosebush of Arizona's great and strange southland spreads over an area of 50 feet by 35 feet. Its branches all spread from a single upright trunk small enough that a man might easily reach around it. The rosebush is a favored place for teas and luncheons, for it offers at once a cool shade from the desert sun and beautiful flowers for the tables.

Roses grow in many varieties and colors, yet, strange as it seems, all roses are related to the apricot tree—they are of the same botanical family.

America's new legal beer has been defined as 3.2 per cent alcohol by weight, 4 per cent by volume—still another definition may be given under the "proof" system of naming alcoholic strength. Under this system the volume of alcohol is based on 200 for absolute alcohol. Hence, 4 per cent by volume in fact is 8 per cent proof by that system.

Congressional Club's Women Win Over Kenwood in Golf Upset by 8-7 Score

Columbia Is Victor Over Woodmont

COLUMBIA maintained its lead in the District Women's First-team matches yesterday at Woodmont, but barely escaped defeat at the hands of the host club.

Showing surprising strength, Woodmont's team, led by Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith and Mrs. Theodore Peyser, held the champions to 8 points, while scoring 7. Mrs. Goldsmith, in winning 3 points from Mrs. J. W. Beller, shot a 91, although it remained for Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, Columbia captain, to set the medal pace with her 88.

Congressional furnished the day's upset by defeating Kenwood, 8 to 7, and Chevy Chase moved into a tie for second place with Kenwood by overwhelming Army and Navy, 14 o 1.

In the other matches, Beaver Dam toppled Washington, 8½ to 6½, and Indian Spring defeated Manor, 9½ to 5½.

Beaten Only by Chevy Chase.

Among the scores reported, Miss Virginia Pope, Kenwood, carded a 92, as did Mrs. H. R. Quinter, of Columbia, and Miss Louise Claytor, of Chevy Chase.

All Store League Games Shifted to Saturdays

The Department Store League announced yesterday that for the remainder of the season all games will be played on Saturdays. This move was made possible by the closing of all stores on this day during the months of July and August. Heretofore games have been played on Sundays.

Tomorrow Hecht and Kann's will meet on the North Ellipse at 11 o'clock. At the same hour Palais Royal will tangle with Lansburgh's on the East Ellipse.

Defeat Handed To Helen Jacobs

There was little for the galleries to applaud in the Moody-Krahwinkel semifinal, the tall German girl—one of the largest women playing tennis—finding herself pitted against a tennis machine which kept returning the ball until the fraulein sent it outside the lines or in the net.

The German girl threw caution to the winds on a few occasions and charged the net to count winning points, but she could not keep to the pace and Mrs. Moody never relaxed the pressure.

The day was not a happy one for American fans as Mrs. Moody herself lost out in mixed doubles, as did Elizabeth Ryan, the former Californian.

Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, defending title holders from France, won their final brackets in men's doubles and will meet the winner of the other semifinal between R. Nunoi and Jiro Satoh, of Japan, and Baron von Cramm and E. Nourney, of Germany.

Ellsworth Vines, jr., and Jack Crawford, men's singles finalists, rested today in preparation for their feature encounter tomorrow, the climax of the championships. Vines still rules the favorite to defend his title, but the Australian and French champion is expected to give him much more of a battle than he did last year in the semifinals, where Vines won, 6—2, 6—1, 6—3.

WOMEN'S DOUBLES, SEMIFINALS.
Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, United States, defeated Hilda Krahwinkel, Germany, 6—4, 6—3; Dorothy Round, England, defeated Helen Jacobs, United States, 4—6, 6—4, 6—2.

MEN'S DOUBLES, SEMIFINALS.
Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, France, defeated Vernon Kirby and Nat Farquaharson, South Africa, 5—7, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3, 6—4; R. Nunoi and Jiro Satoh, Japan, defeated George Patrick Hughes and Fred Perry, England, 5—7, 6—3, 6—4, 1—6, 6—3.

MIXED DOUBLES, FIFTH ROUND.
Nat Farquaharson, South Africa, and Mary Heeley, England, defeated Henri Cochet, France, and Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, England, 4—6, 10—8, 6—4; Jean Borotra, France, and Betty Nuthall, England, defeated Vernon Kirby, South Africa, and Josane Sigart, Belgium, 10—8, 2—6, 6—3; Baron Gottfriend von Cramm and Hilda Krahwinkel, Germany, defeated Elisabeth Ryan, United States, and Enrique Maier, Spain, 6—2, 7—5.

WOMEN'S DOUBLES, FIFTH ROUND.
Mrs. Elsie Goldsack Pittman and Joan Ridley, England, defeated Betty Nuthall and Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall, England, 8—8, 8—6, 6—1.

District to Send Its Quota To Women's Golf Amateur

Mrs. Haynes Is Expected to Lead Delegation to Highland Park, Md., for Annual Championship Opening on August 28.

WOMEN golfers of Washington will be interested in the announcement sent out yesterday by the United States Golf Association with respect to the holding of the women's amateur championship on August 28, 29, 30 and 31 and September 1 and 2 at the Exmoor Country Club, Highland Park, Ill.

Entries will be received from women players having handicaps up to 6 inclusive, as rated by the Women's Sectional Golf Associations in the United States. Any player whose name does not appear on these lists and who desires to compete in the championship must submit to Mrs. E. Gillig Betz, 18 Merion road, Merion, Pa., before Tuesday, August 8, five dated and attested score cards covering rounds during the current playing season from at least two courses.

These attested cards must have marked thereon, the committee points out, the correct distance for each hole played, and in case women's tees are used, the same must be noted. Upon the basis of the scores and distances submitted, the player will be rated and notified at least one week prior to the championship.

Entries, accompanied by entrance fee of $5, should be sent to Mrs. Betz, who is secretary, not later than Saturday, August 12.

There will be an 18-hole qualifying round, with the best 32 low scorers to qualify for the championship flight. Virginia Van Wie, of Chicago, is the defending champion.

The women's committee consists of Mrs. John A. Wheeler, chairman, Evanston, Ill.; Miss Florence McNeely, Merion, Pa.; Mrs. Willard P. Sullivan, Suffolk, Va.; Mrs. W. W. Haerther, Lake Villa, Ill.; Miss Frances Stebinns, Newton, Mass.; Mrs. O. S. Hills, Kansas City, Mo.; Mrs. P. L. Corson, Plymouth Meeting, Pa.; Miss Rosalie Knapp, New York, and Mrs. George P. Egleston, San Francisco, Calif.

The District is expected to send its quota of golfers, led by Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, of Columbia. It is doubtful if Mrs. Betty Palmer Meckley, of Indian Spring, who qualified last year and bowed in her first-round match to Miss Van Wie, will participate, because of illness.

There is a strong possibility that the three young stars, Virginia Pope, of Kenwood; Helen Dettweiler, of Manor, and Virginia Williams, of Congressional, will make the trip.

Nats 4-5 Choices To Take Pennant

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Jack Doyle, Broadway betting commission, has established the Washington Nationals and New York Giants as favorites to win the American and National League pennants, respectively.

Doyle quotes 4 to 5 on Washington's chances in the American League and 6 to 5 on the Giants, in the National.

Other odds: American League, Yankees, 1-1; Philadelphia, 8-1; Cleveland, 15-1; Chicago, 20-1; Boston, 30-1; Detroit, 50-1; St. Louis, 200-1.

National League, St. Louis, 8-5; Pittsburgh, 4-1; Chicago, 8-1; Brooklyn, 30-1; Boston, 30-1; Philadelphia, 50-1; Cincinnati, 100-1.

At the start of the season Doyle quoted the Yankees at 2 to 5, and the Chicago Cubs at 7 to 5 in the favorite positions. Washington then was held at 3 to 1, and the Giants at 20 to 1.

Regain Title, Navy Told by Roosevelt

Philadelphia, July 6 (A.P.).—To hear the sailormen on the cruiser Indianapolis tell it, President Roosevelt, a seagoing man himself, has commissioned the Navy to develop the next heavyweight boxing champion of the world.

That was disclosed by sailors today as the Indianapolis came into the Philadelphia Navy Yard after carrying the President back from Campobello, N. B., to Annapolis, Md., where he left for Washington.

In a talk to the assembled ship's company on the cruiser last Saturday the President was quoted by sailors as saying that since Jack Sharkey, a former sailor, lost the championship to Primo Carnera, it was up to the Navy to bring the crown back to the United States from Italy.

Bob Dunnigan Is Hero at Glen Echo

BOB DUNNIGAN, 18, was the hero of the first novice swimming meet held last night at the Crystal Pool in Glen Echo Park under the auspices of the American Legion.

Flashing home first in the 60-yard free style swim, Dunnigan came back to assert his class in the fancy diving event and win first prize.

Bill Eaton was second in the 60-yard free style, and Darrell Trundle, third. Kenneth Trundle took second in the fancy diving and Darrell Trundle, third.

Following the events, Mahlon Glascock, intercollegiate diving champion from Yale, life guard at Glen Echo, gave an exhibition to the delight of several hundred spectators.

Harris Leads Nats In Brisk Practice for base hits and they'll be out there again today, to be joined later in the day by Manager Cronin, who is due back from the all-star game at Chicago.

Plans for the Walter Johnson day are going on apace at the ball park, where an attendance of at least 25,000 is expected for the twin bill that has been set aside as a testimonial for the immortal pitching idol of Washington fandom. The ceremonies at the plate will be announced tomorrow.

The Nats skimpy lead of 2½ games over the Yankees, while very pleasing, is still precarious, and it behooves them to knock off the Western clubs with great regularity during their present home stand if their lead is to be protected and lengthened, for the hot breaths of the Yanks can still be felt on their collective necks.

There are certain pitchers among the invading Western clubs who can beat the Nats or any other team, barring accidents. The Indians are bringing along Ora Hildebrand, Wes Ferrell and Mel Harder. The Browns will present Bump Hadley and George Blaeholder. The Tigers have Tom Bridges and Fred Marberry, and the White Sox can start Sam Jones and Walter Miller, the last of whom held Washington to two hits in his last appearance here.

But no other club in the league can show that very necessary item called balance, which has put the Nats where they are today. The Nats have proven superior to all opposition in their combined hitting, pitching and fielding, and it has been their happy lot that when the hitters aren't hitting, although rare, the pitchers have delivered for them. When they lacked the pitching, they have been slugging out victories.

'My Prayer Was Answered,' Testifies Girl Accusing Boss

Was Told There Would Be No Drinking at Party, She Tells Court.

CHICAGO, July 6 (A.P.).—Harley Boss, of the Cleveland American League club, formerly with Washington, displayed no lack of punch the night of April 19, Lillian Eloise Mitchell, comely 22-year-old brunette, of Winston-Salem, N. C., testified in Circuit Court today.

She charged the first baseman struck her in the face when she resisted his advances, blacking both her eyes and causing several bruises. She asks $50,000 damages in a suit now on trial.

Boss' diamond and locker-room manners were described by Walter McNichols, secretary of the Cleveland Club, as exemplary. McNichols said Boss never caused the management any embarrassment. Once Boss was benched, however, for failing to get results with his bat, he added.

Recounts Life History.

On cross-examination by defense counsel, William J. McGah, Miss Mitchell told of the alleged attack attempt in the athlete's Cleveland apartment. Previously, she had recounted her life history—her divorce in 1928 from Glen W. Gardner, of Hartsville, S. C., and her subsequent seeking of a livelihood.

She met Boss when she was staying in Cleveland while employed as a member of a magazine circulation crew. Her roommate, Mrs. Marie Sweitzer, a widow, brought about the meeting, Miss Mitchell said.

Assured there would be no drinking, she attended a party in Boss' apartment, she testified, at the conclusion of which she and her host were alone in the place.

Boss began drinking beer, said Mrs. Mitchell; then they began to argue as to whether she was going home.

"I said I was," she testified. "Boss said I wasn't. It became sort of a game. He appeared quite matter-of-fact about it."

Says She Made Prayer.

Boss then attempted to prevent her leaving the apartment, she said, striking her in the face.

"I begin to cry," she said, "then I whispered a prayer. In answer to my prayer——"

Attorney McGah objected and Judge Walter La Buy ordered the remark stricken from the record.

"He went to the telephone and I ran to the door. I fled down the hall toward the fire escape and Boss came after me.

"'That's not the way out,' he told me—and took me back into the room and handed me my hat."

He tossed some silver coins toward her hat as she departed, Miss Mitchell said. She kept a dime for carfare, she said.

Her eyes were discolored, her lips and nose bleeding when she got home, she said.

Was He Bossy?

"Carnera wouldn't hurt me. He wouldn't land a punch. If he did, I've been kicked harder on the chin by a wrestler's foot than Carnera punches. But I'd have him down in a minute. And if it's a case of a boxer going to the mat with a wrestler, it won't be any contest."

Care for Selves Better.

Wrestlers last longer at the top than boxers because they take better care of themselves, says Londos. He explains:

"What happens when a boxer wins a title? He doesn't fight again for six months. Maybe a year. He takes a long rest. He goes back into the ring and he's not the same man. He thinks he is, but it's harder to come back than it is to keep in training.

"The wrestler works three or four nights a week. He's got to keep in shape or he won't get any bookings. He can't go in for the boxer's night life and the high living. As a matter of fact, every highly trained athlete's body needs work. That's why fight champions are washed up within a few years. And that's why the best wrestlers stay at the top for a dozen years."

Thanks, Mr. Theophilus.

10,000 See Londos Throw Ray Steele

Steele probably doled out more punishment than did his foe and during the last half-hour of the bout the champ was willing to end it if he could. He frequently asked the referee, "Is he down yet?" and had it not been for the fact that Ray went head first on his airplane ride out of the ring, the two might have been rassling yet.

Twice during the bout, Steele forced the champ to crawl to the ropes because of unbreakable holds, and on these occasions he appeared to be hurt so badly that twice he took the count of eight and once he almost waited too long, just getting back before the fatal ten.

Steele did most of his damage with scissor holds and leg stretches, while Londos depended upon an arm-bar lock, although he, too, used the leg stretch to good effect on a number of occasions.

R. Dusek Tosses Coleman.

Rudy Dusek and Abe Coleman furnished a semifinal which would have stolen the play from the feature in the average show, with the former winning in 20 minutes. The boys went at it hammer and tongs, lost their tempers several times, and gave the crowd a good run for its money. Coleman missed when attempting his famous kangaroo kick, and hurt himself when he fell. Rudy then gently caressed his stomach with a pair of knee jolts and put on the finishing touches with a flying mare.

The cash customers were off to a good start when that arch-villain, Floyd Marshall, got his bumps in the curtain raiser. Marshall outdid himself in rough and forbidden tactics, but his much lighter foe, Swede Olsen, did not seem to mind, and won the verdict in 16½ minutes with a series of flying mares.

Hans Steinke outclassed Ivan Vakturoff by a city block. He probably could have won in two minutes but he toyed with his foe an extra five before pinning him with a lusty body slam.

In the other bout, Gino Garibaldi and Pat O'Shocker battled to a half-hour draw. The Irishman, whom Dame Rumor says bathes in milk to keep his skin so pretty and white, seems to be a greatly improved performer. He and the Italian traveled at a fast clip throughout, at times forgot they were not in a brawl, and both were were given the glad hand at the finish.

All in all, it was a good show and unquestionably made many new converts to the followers of these strange mat rites.

Joe Cronin's Play In Game Brilliant

In the third round Cronin grabbed a pop-up from Martin's bat, and in the fifth he moved over to deep short, grabbed Berger's roller and threw him out. Cronin's last assist came in the seventh, when his toss to Gehringer forced Terry at second, thus preventing a run, as Traynor came up and doubled. Berger, whose roller had forced Terry, could get only to third on the two-baser.

At bat Cronin walked in the second, flied out to Berger in the third and singled over second in the sixth. In his last trip to the plate in the seventh Joe fouled out to Terry.

Alvin Crowder, Washington ace, was brought in to pitch in the fourth, when Gomez was taken out, and for three innings served up an assortment of slow stuff, with some speed thrown in. It was one of the latter Frankie Frisch lined into the right-field seats in the sixth.

Securities Act Lists Aims to Guard Public

Supervision of Shares Not to Hinder Business, Says Rules Statement.

(Associated Press.)

Protection of the investing public without handicapping business financing was listed as the chief objective of the Federal Trade Commission yesterday in an announcement promulgating rules for enforcing the Federal securities act.

This statement of policy accompanied publication of regulations through which the commission will supervise future security sales, and a long form on which issuers must tell the commission and the public the financial facts supporting their securities.

The commission said it would receive registration statements beginning today and that these certificates "with all information contained therein, will be available for public inspection at the commission's offices in Washington."

"The commission desired to point out," it said, "that most of the rules and regulations are explicitly required by the securities act.

Experimental Regulations.

"In some matters the commission has discretion and the rules and regulations in relation thereto are experimental pending actual working experience with the new securities act and will be subject to revision from time to time as experience proves the advisability of changes."

Registration certificates, which encompass the financial background of a business issuing new securities, must be filed with the commission in triplicate. Together with them must go five copies of the advertising prospectus to be issued on the security.

Some of the more bulky data required in the registration certificate need not be included in prospectus. Important among the allowed omissions from advertising circulars are the discounts and commissions paid underwriters.

Registration certificates must be on file 20 days before they become effective. Filing becomes mandatory July 27.

Vital Registration Facts.

Names of underwriters and owners of more than 10 per cent of any one class of the company's outstanding stock.

Handling Is Summarized.

Baldwin D. Bane, who will direct the securities division of the commission, summarized the handling of registration certificates in this way:

"One copy will go to the photostating room and be held for public inspection. Two copies will go to our accountants and security experts for examination.

"If any errors are discovered, the issuer will be notified within ten days so corrections shall be made."

The commission may, at any later date, cancel the registration if the statement is found to contain untrue information or to omit material facts. Should this be the case, the issuer, including directors of an issuing corporation, and the underwriters, are civilly liable to purchasers.

Use of Gas Tax For D. C. Work Seen as Likely

Douglas Says Ruling Awaits Decision on Number of Public Jobs Here.

Budget Director Lewis W. Douglas yesterday conferred with President Roosevelt, after which he modified his previous ruling that the District Commissioners could not spend the $1,500,000 appropriated by Congress from the gasoline tax fund for highway improvements.

District officials yesterday were further encouraged by promises of support from the Board of Trade and other civic bodies and were hopeful that the budget director may consent to approve the two major projects asked under the gasoline tax program, and perhaps $275,000 for maintenance as well. The two projects are the Calvert street bridge and the widening of Constitution avenue between Second and South Capitol streets.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, today will submit a partial list of highway improvement projects to the District Commissioners with the recommendation that it be forwarded to the Bureau of Public Roads for financing under the $1,918,469 Federal grant for District highways as provided in the public works act.

Bridge Plan Waits Approval.

Unless the Budget Director approves the Calvert Street Bridge appropriation and the $275,000 for maintenance included in the gasoline tax fund program, the bridge may not be started this year, as there is no other sources for financing it save a 100 per cent grant by the Public Works Administration, and the District highway maintenance program will be severely handicapped.

While the Constitution avenue job might be paid for out of the public works fund, District officials do not want to list it because of the previous arrangement that the Federal Government is to pay part of the cost out of another fund.

The District Commissioners yesterday made public the letter they received from Budget Director Douglas stating that he could not approve the gasoline tax fund expenditure until the question of how many public works may be authorized in the District is settled.

Officials Are Pessimistic.

Despite the Budget Director's partial relenting after calling at the White House yesterday, District officials were inclined to believe that the highway improvement program outside the Calvert Street Bridge and the Constitution avenue projects will not be approved. The maintenance item of $275,000 may be approved, however, because it can not be shifted to the public works list.

Representatives of the Board of Trade and the Washington Chamber of Commerce have asked the Commissioners to be heard this morning when the District heads consider Commissioner Gotwals' recommendations on the design of the Calvert Street Bridge

The previous refusal of the Budget Director to approve the expenditure of the gasoline tax funds drew a wrathful letter from the Washington Board of Trade yesterday.

Erroneous Conception Charged.

Speaking for the 3,000 members of the trade body, the letter charged that the basis on which the refusal was made is "erroneous in its conception." This criticism was prompted by the Budget Director's opinion that the rights of the District must be considered together with the national program.

The Board of Trade, in its letter, answers: "We view taxes raised from and paid by the citizens of the municipality as in no wise a matter of national expenditure. This money was paid by the people of Washington in taxes for the upkeep of their municipality and, therefore, its expenditure can not affect the national budget one way or another."

Pointing out that there is already an unexpended surplus of $1,800,000 in the gasoline tax fund, the letter stated: "There is no conceivable justification, particularly during the present economic crisis, which demands that the citizens of this, or any municipality, be required to pay $1,800,000 in taxes over and above what they are permitted to use, or that such funds should lie idle and useless.

Expenditure of the money would prevent some 300 men from being discharged and provide additional work for many others, the letter asserted.

Learning How to Be American Citizens

Fire Personnel Will Arrange Labor Day Fete

Volunteers of Department to Head Committees Planning Parade.

Firemen of the District Fire Department, including privates and officers, will head the important committees for this year's Labor Day parade, it has been decided by the National Firemen's Association.

Volunteers from all companies will be requested. The most willing workers will be assigned the chairmanship posts and given complete charge of the work that comes under their jurisdiction.

This year's parade will mark the first time the men of the District department have been asked as a body to enter into the planmaking of the big event. Usually this has been left to citizens' committees.

However, Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, parade marshal and founder of the Labor Day pageant, and his associates, George Finger and Nobel Rushe, of the Firemen's Association, decided to make this year's celebration more of a firemen's event than ever before.

This plan also meets with the hearty approval of Chief George S. Watson, head of the District department. Parade leaders also plan to ask the District Firefighter's Association and the Officers' Association to take an active part in arranging the parade.

Names of some of the department chairmen will be announced within the next few days. Several firefighters have already volunteered for work, and others are expected to when it is known that their services have been called for.

While work on chairmanships is going forward, invitations to many fire companies throughout the country are being mailed out. This year departments from far-away States will be invited to the celebration in Washington. Heretofore, the invitations have gone chiefly to companies in nearby States.

Passenger Sues Driver For $20,000 Injuries

Walter S. Abernathy and his wife, Florence Dillon Abernathy, of the Broadmoor, filed suits in the District Supreme Court yesterday against William D. Bremer, of Norwood, Ohio, for damages of $25,000 for alleged automobile injuries received last August 20. In her declaration the wife claims $20,000 for personal injuries, and the husband $5,000 for medical expenses and the loss of the company and society of his wife.

The couple claim that the defendant invited Mrs. Abernathy to a ride with him, and that at Connecticut avenue, near California street, he collided with another car. Mrs. Abernathy claims that she received serious injury to her hip and nose, and a concussion of the brain. Both are represented by Attorney Godfrey L. Munter.

Urge of Aliens To Be Citizens Defies Weather

The horns and bassos struggle through the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "My Country, 'Tis of Thee." The voices pick out slow, torturous words: "The Supreme Court may declare a law unconstitutional." "A law that is unconstitutional is not a good law."

The musicians are learning to play American music. The others are learning to speak American words. Because they all want to be American citizens. They come from the old country—from the land of olives and the grape, from the land of perennial snow, from the land of eternal sunshine. They are all students at the Americanization School. They are future citizens of the United States.

Some are illiterates. Some are erudite professors, doctors, lawyers. Some are mothers. Some grandmothers. To watch them in class is to see the characteristics of a score of nations. In half an hour one travels through Europe. By closing the eyes and listening to their voices, one sees the countries from which they came.

The illiterates are grouped in a separate class. They have to learn to write English before they begin their course in naturalization. The more advanced students are completing their work in Americanization. In a few weeks, they will appear before the naturalization examiner. Then before a justice of the District Supreme Court. Then they will become American citizens.

Eighteen men and women, representing ten countries, were naturalized this week. They are Abe Miller, Lithuania; Anacleto Prosperi, Italy; Donald Alex Kennedy, England; Poul Bjarne Damsbo, Denmark; Leandro Diaz, Spain; William Hickingbottom, England; Karl Wolf, Louis Bernard Bussee, Ida Schneider Busse, Germany; Daniel Patrick Sullivan, England; Max Exler, Russia; Samuel Eisenberg, Poland; Raphael Castelli, Italy; Flossie Agnes Darby, England; Amanouel John Glazos, Greece; Kedwig Kohling, Germany; Ernest Kohling, Germany and Rudo Kiattia, Hungary.

Hamilton Bank Gives Rules to Old Depositors

How to Get Funds From 8 Closed Concerns Upon Opening Explained.

Letters of instruction to depositors in eight local, restricted banks forming the proposed Hamilton National Bank of Washington, telling them how to secure their money from this prospective bank when it opens, are expected to be distributed soon. The opening of Hamilton National Bank will release 50 per cent of its component banks' deposits, more than $10,000,000, to their depositors.

With the letters, it is understood, will be forms proving the depositors' claims which they will file at the respective branches or main banking houses of all the banks concerned. While claims may be proved at the five buildings of banks forming Hamilton National Bank which no longer will be retained as branches of the latter, under present arrangements, it is expected, they may be cashed only at the nine buildings to be held for the new Hamilton National Bank.

These are the main offices of Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co. and its branches at Dupont Circle, Pennsylvania avenue and Twentieth street northwest, and in Brookland, and at the banking houses of Potomac Savings Bank, Northeast Savings Bank, Woodridge-Langdon Savings & Commercial Bank, Seventh Street Savings Bank, and United States Savings Bank.

Under present arrangements, however, claims also may be proved at the main office of District National Bank, and its branches on Connecticut avenue and Ninth street, the Fifteenth and H street branch of Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co., and the banking building of Washington Savings Bank. These buildings are to be abandoned by the new Hamilton National Bank. The foregoing arrangements may be subject to change, however.

Primo, ostracized swan, pictured above, swimming alone unconcerned because his fellow fowl don't seem to care for his company, their dislike apparently due to his crippled wing.

Primo, Wing Hurt, Can't Strut With Swans, But Can He Punch?!!

The lugubrious tale of the ugly duckling is being relived today at the Zoo's American waterfowl pond. For every mallard there is another mallard, each duck has another duck. Primo has only himself.

Primo—the name is adopted only for convenience and was suggested by the swan's wing which is crippled so that it resembles a fist about to deal out a straight right—Primo is a socially ostracised swan. If the outcast fowl is a female, Primo will do anyway, as a "pen" name.

Society among his own kind, of which there are only four others, or among the scores of birds in the pond, is not for this webfoot. See the group of geese or swans parading down the cool waters in strict formation. Primo is not among them. If he glides into the line of march there are angry honks and he sets a different course.

The photographer yesterday found Primo only after considerable difficulty. He was in hiding beneath the trees that skirt the far side of the pond, alone as usual. Some one had to be sent into the bush and shoo him into the water.

Neither Dr. William M. Mann, director, nor William H. Blackburn, head keeper of the Zoo, was able to say yesterday how the swan came by the injury—if it is an injury—which has made him persona non grata among his neighbors. Both held it likely that the bird had engaged in a mating season fight and emerged with a permanent souvenir.

Primo doesn't seem to mind his enforced seclusion, however, and physically is the equal of his snubbers, despite the trick flipper. But for the fact he handles himself so well, he probably would have been put to death long ago by his fellows, in accordance with tradition of the animal world.

Messenger Held In $3,600 Theft

Jewelry Worker Accused of Hiding Sum in Office and Returning Later.

Charged with taking a lock box containing $3,600 owned by the George D. Horning Jewelry Co., while acting as their messenger, F. H. Van Buren, 40, of 1420 Carrollburg place southwest, was arranged in Police Court yesterday and held for action of the grand jury.

Van Buren, according to police, hid the box, with which he was entrusted on June 27 in the company's District office and returned that night and took it away.

He was released yesterday by Judge Isaac Hitt after putting up $5,000 bond.

Craige, Isabelle Likens Gates, Elizabeth Gardner Coombs, Dorothy Davenport, Robert Woodland Gates, Arthur Bradley White, Catherine Buck Lee and two pupils of Mrs. J. Borrows Waters. The pupils are Estelle Donaldson and Emory Brennan.

Inquiry Sought On Wages Paid By Contractors

Corporation Counsel Also to Renew Fight for Stronger Laws.

Recommending that a public hearing be held on complaints against the wage scale of the Catalano Construction Co., of Baltimore, Corporation Counsel William W. Bride declared yesterday his intention of renewing a fight for District legislation under which contractors may be prosecuted for perjury.

Such an act would enable the Commissioners to require sworn statements from contractors regarding wage scales. At present the only penalty the District can invoke for violation of the Bacon-Davis prevailing wage law is cancellation of contract. If the work is completed before the complaints are made, nothing can be done.

The complaint filed Wednesday by John Thomas that he had been paid but 60 cents an hour, though hired as a carpenter at $1 an hour, was strengthened yesterday by the disclosure that two previous wage complaints had been filed with the corporation counsel's office against the Catalano Co.

Two men charged that they were hired as carpenters and paid as carpenters' helpers or at 50 cents an hour. They said they were discharged when they protested. Representatives of union labor have also complained against the contractor's activities at the colored vocational school in the Northeast section.

Meanwhile, Harold W. Baker, director of construction, is investigating other charges against the contractor, involving the kind of work done at the school. He also has instructed Roland Nichols, District inspector on the job, that either he or his two brothers must resign. His brothers are employed by the Catalano Co.

Cat Avenged

Man Who Strangled Ocelot Must Pay $35 and Go on Probation.

Wildcats and "wildcat" whisky make an expensive mixture, Aubrey Gordon Miller found in United States Police Court yesterday, when Judge Isaac Hitt placed him on probation for six months and ordered him to pay $35 restitution as a result of his much-publicized escapade with an ocelot from the Zoo June 6.

Miller got his big ideas about what would be a suitable mascot for his drinking spree and, when he was unable to get at a tiger, he kidnaped a ferocious ocelot from its cage. When the wildcat later became too much of a responsibility and had put his teeth and claws to good use on various parts of his anatomy, Miller strangled the pet to death.

He was charged in court yesterday with taking property without right and, after pleading guilty and paying the $35 restitution, was released on probation.
